BOSS CROKER COMES HOME.

His Special Mission Is to Vote the Tammany Ticket.

SAYS DEMOCRACY WILL WIN.

Everything Points to Coming Business Prosperity and That Means the Success of the Party.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Richard Croker arrived to-day from England by the steamer Columbia.

At first Croker refused to say a word about politics. He excused himself upon the ground that he had been away so long and that so many events had transpired during his absence.

"Have you come to take an active part in the campaign, Mr. Croker?" he was asked.

"I have simply come back to be in time to vote the Tammany ticket; otherwise I am entirely out of politics."

"Do you regard the prospects of the Democratic party as favorable?"

"As I have been away for six months it might be well to wait till I study the conditions here before answering your question. However, everything indicates that we are going to have good times again. If good times return and the country is in a prosperous condition next year, the Democratic party will win. As the party was held responsible for hard times, it naturally should receive the credit of having restored prosperity. On this basis I expect the next President to be a Democratic one."

Further than this Mr. Croker refused to talk upon political subjects, except to say in answer to a question that he did not expect to attend the State Convention.

Mr. Croker spoke enthusiastically of his racing in England and said he hoped to do considerable racing there next year.

Some of the Tammany chieftains expected to meet Mr. Croker with a boat, a brass band and a hurrah at Quarantine, but they were quietly informed that Mr. Croker preferred to arrive unostentatiously, just like a private American citizen.

Hill Is Hopeful.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Senator Hill came to the city last night from Albany. He said he had come on private business and declined to discuss political matters for publication. He believes, they say, that if the coming convention takes a broad and liberal course and nominates a high class of candidates the Democracy can win this fall.

DEFIED THE SUPERSTITIONS.

Gen. McKinstry and His Bride-to-Be Make a Friday Start.

Gen. Justus McKinstry, the veteran of many wars, who will go down in history as the iron-handed Provost Marshal of St. Louis, has defied the superstition which frowns on Friday marriages. Early this morning he and Miss Adelaide T. Dickinson marched into the marriage license office and obtained permission to wed.

In a firm voice the General said he was 81, and his bride declared that she was 39. They signed their names with steady hand. Their interesting romance was narrated in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch.

He notified a policeman and had Garfield arrested.

INDICTMENT TAMPERED WITH

But the Trial of Swindler Rothschilds Will Go On.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, Mo., Sept. 20.—The Moberly term of the Randolph Circuit Court has been in session two weeks and much business remains to be done. The most interesting case is that of the State against Smythe, alias Rothschilds, etc., who is wanted in several places in the United States for obtaining goods and money under false pretences and was extradited from Canada and brought to Moberly. Interest in the case has been increased by the fact that one leaf of the indictment in his case is missing, and it is believed some one has tampered with it.

The matter was brought up at the opening of court this morning and passed upon, and the case set for trial on Monday under a new indictment, the Grand-jury being still in session.

It is not known who mutilated the document, but the missing link was found in time for the prosecution to notify the court. There was an effort to delay the trial upon the part of the defendant, but Judge Hockaday said time enough had been given. He would set the case for Monday, but would be prepared to entertain any motions in the case that might come up. Much indignation is expressed by the people out of court when speaking of the tampering with the indictment in this case.

THE PRAYERS OF CATHOLICS.

PROTEST IS WORLD WIDE.

The Overthrow of Papal Temporal Power Resented by the Loyal Followers of Leo XIII.

Two hundred and fifty millions of Catholics, representing every race and every nationality of the globe, to-day offer up prayers for the restoration of the Pope's temporal power and give outward expression to their protest against the public celebration by the Kingdom of Italy of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the breach of Porta Pia—the downfall of Papal Rome.

The nature of the demonstration is more religious than political. Therefore it has not attracted the attention that a purely political matter of less import would likely arouse.

Its significance lies in its universality; its interest in the fact that in some instances a majority, in many others, a representative minority of the citizens of nearly every republic and every kingdom of the world thus publicly protest against the celebration by another country of its political independence.

This world-wide protest takes the form of solemn religious services in the Catholic churches of the world, the motive of the prayers of priest and people being the peace, prosperity and final triumph of the church militant and to the better advancement of that end, the political independence of the Holy See. This is the purely religious side. In addition the church societies will meet and pass resolutions condemning spoliation of the Papal dominions as an act of injustice to the spiritual rule of the Catholic church. Expressions of loyalty and sympathy for the "Prisoner of the Vatican" will also be adopted and forwarded through the bishops to the Holy Father.

In all the Roman Catholic Churches of St. Louis solemn high mass was celebrated to-day. At the sermon solemn reference to the import of the day was made. Following the services the blessed sacrament was exposed and will remain so all day, that the faithful may come and offer prayers of reparation. This evening there will be services again, consisting of a sermon and benediction.

A number of church societies have already met and passed resolutions of sympathy and protest and many more will follow suit either to-night or within the next eight days. A movement was contemplated to hold a big public mass-meeting of Catholics, but owing to the impossibility of securing Music Hall the project was abandoned. Instead, the Marquette Club, the representative Catholic body of the city, will hold an open meeting on the night of Sept. 26, and after hearing speeches from a number of distinguished Catholics, will pass appropriate resolutions. At St. Elisabeth's Colored Church, Thirteenth and Morgan streets, to-night Rev. James Conway, S. J., Professor of Philosophy and History in the Post-Graduate Department of the St. Louis University, will deliver a lecture on the "Pope's Temporal Sovereignty."

The celebration that has evoked this great moral counter-demonstration commemorates the establishment of Rome as the capital of United Italy under the rule of Victor Emanuel. From the days of Constantine the Pope had been blessed with great temporal possessions and yielded no allegiance to the civil power. The foundation of the Papal States was laid by Gregory III. in 728, when he declared the city of Rome independent of Bysantine rule and called on Charles Martel for aid against the Lombards. Martel's son Pepin forced the Lombards to yield twenty-two cities to Pope Gregory's successor. Charlemagne increased the donation. The dominion grew by constant accretions. In 1278 Pope Nicholas III. compelled the German Emperor, Rudolph of Hapsburg, to recognize him as an independent sovereign.

The downfall of Papal independence began with the French revolution. Pius VI. was made prisoner by French troops and Rome annexed to France in 1806. Eight years later the Pope was restored. In 1848 the rebellion of Garibaldi and Mazzini began. Pius IX. was driven from the city and the Roman republic formed. An appeal to France brought about the defeat of the revolutionists, and for twenty years French troops garrisoned the Eternal City. Then the vision of United Italy, propagated by Victor Emanuel, spread, and one by one the Papal States drew away from Papal sovereignty to join the new order.

In August, 1870, the French troops were withdrawn, and on Sept. 20 Victor Emanuel entered the city through the breach in the beautiful Porta Pia that had been built by Michael Angelo and restored by Pius IX.

There are now two sovereigns in Rome, Humbert, who rules united Italy from the Quirinal, despoiled ecclesiastical possession and Leo XIII., who from the Vatican rules over the spiritual conduct of 250,000,000 subjects.

The relations between the two courts have been terribly strained, and when word came from the Quirinal that Italy, bankrupt though she be, would celebrate in magnificent fashion the entry into the Eternal City and downfall of papal dominion, the Vatican set up devising a counter demonstration. Word was sent to every archbishop, bishop and vicar apostolic in the world reminding them of the outrage that would be put upon the holy father's feelings by the Roman civic celebration of the day. The result is an episcopal injunction to Roman Catholics the world over to make the day one of protest.

Catholics have not abandoned the idea of seeing the Pope's temporal sovereignty restored. Within a year a society of Catholic noblemen has been formed in Europe with a branch in this country presided over by Judge Edmund Dunne of Jacksonville, Fla., to keep alive the agitation of the subject until the end is accomplished.

More recently two propositions looking to the end have been advanced. One, that the Pope, taking advantage of the bankrupt state of Italy, propose to purchase Rome and a port on the Tiber outright from the Italian Government for $2,000,000,000. Prominent American ecclesiasts scout the idea, saying "the Pope would not buy back what he had been robbed of." The other is to secure from Italy through the intervention of other powers, a perpetual guarantee of the Pope's sovereignty and a concession of a small amount of territory as significant of that right.

BLAZING LUMBER.

Destruction by Fire of the Murphy Mill at Green Bay.

GREEN BAY, Wis., Sept. 20.—The mill of the Murphy Lumber Company burned to-day. The loss is $75,000, fully insured.

The company's immense yards were threatened, owing to a high wind, and were saved with difficulty. The mill may not be rebuilt, as the company's pine is nearly exhausted, and it has recently bought extensive timber lands in Washington State.

DIRECT EVIDENCE.

Boodling Story of Representative Spencer of Illinois.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 20.—But two witnesses were examined by the Grand-jury to-day regarding legislative boodling. They were Representative John G. Huffman of Bluffs, Scott County, and Representative Melville W. Spencer of Carmi, White County. Huffman's testimony was of an indirect nature, but he gave the jury names of representatives who had been approached by boodlers.

Spencer was direct in his evidence, and gave the jury names of the members who offered him money to vote for the passage of House bill 127 over the Governor's veto. The amount was also given to the jury. A statement was made that a partial report of work accomplished will be given the Court to-morrow, after which a recess will be taken for one week.

This will be the last day of the present heated term and there will be a considerable fall in temperature by Saturday evening.

LOCAL READINGS.

Deadly Heat at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 20.—Including to-day the weather record for the month of September in and around Chicago has been broken all to pieces and suffering humanity is hoping that they will never enter into another contest. The mercury climbed steadily yesterday until it reached the 91 mark on the official thermometer in the auditorium tower, and this was certainly 6 to 8 deg. cooler than it was on the streets. The humidity was something terrible

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 20.—A storm of considerable strength is moving eastward north of Minnesota and will be attended by southwest shifting to west gales, and conditions favorable for thunder storms over the upper lake region during the next twenty-four hours. In the rear of this storm, the temperature has fallen 10 to 35 deg., and showers have occurred from the Northern Rocky Mountain region over the middle and upper Missouri and Red River valleys. Snow is reported this morning in the region north of Montana and the temperature to or below freezing in Western Montana and the region to the northward last night. In this section and generally over the Western States the temperature will fall 10 to 15 deg. during the next thirty-six hours.

WAR BEGUN IN FREIGHT RATES.

Wiggins Ferry and the Bridge Combine Have Fallen Out.

POOLING ARRANGEMENT OFF

It Is Claimed that the Terminal Railroad Association Refuses to Pay Over Excess Earnings.

There is a big fight brewing between the bridge combine and the Wiggins Ferry Co. which may yet be carried into the courts for settlement.

Since the two bridges got to working in such harmony under the ownership of the Terminal Railway Association they have succeeded in making fearful inroads into the business formerly carried by the ferry.

Under the aggression of the two bridges tonnage over the ferry has fallen off until to all intents and purposes it has become merely a nominal member of the combine.

And now the Terminal Railroad Association has become heavily indebted to the ferry, and refuses to pay. The debt was in the neighborhood of $10,000 several days ago, and has in all probability greatly increased since. This indebtedness grows out of the fact that the Wiggins company's tonnage has fallen considerably below the percentage which it was agreed under the old combine should be carried by the ferry.

Under that agreement if the business went above 24 per cent of the whole, the ferry paid the difference to the bridges, and if below 24 per cent the bridges paid the difference to the ferry. The remaining 76 per cent of the business was apportioned between the Merchants 'and Eads bridges at about 19 and 57 per cent respectively. Since the bridges have become one it gives them 76 per cent of all business carried, and they have said to have carried even more.

As a matter of form, presumably, the combine has been kept up and S. D. Webster, the rate commissioner, goes right on making out his statements showing percentages and money due to the Wiggins Ferry from the bridges by reason of the excess tonnage carried by the latter. But these statements are all there is to it. The cash don't come and President John Scullin, of the Wiggins, is said to be getting impatient.

What is believed to be the first step towards open hostilities was taken by the Wiggins company Thursday, when cuts were made in brick, coal and coke rates. The bridges followed suit immediately and made cuts on the same classes of freight. About a year ago the Terminal Railroad Association began to kick over the traces, but President Scullin whipped them into line and secured a big slice of the business by making some big cuts in the rates. The bridge people were not hunting trouble and the ferry's demands were acceded to. The next day the latter withdrew its cut rates.

This last schedule, which sails under the guise of a "supplement to tariff No. 9," reduces the rate on brick a quarter of a cent per 100 pounds, and coke (for delivery to connecting lines) half a cent. It discriminates between freight for concerns within the city and that which merely passes through. Apparently the bridges have cut the rate on brick to it a car below the ferry's new schedule, the latter making it its charge, while the new schedule over the bridge is only $5.

VIOLATED RULES AND LAWS.

An Officer to Be Tried on a Peculiar Charge.

An officer of the Fourth District will be brought before the Police Commissioners Tuesday on a peculiar charge, that of having gone into a North Market street barber shop Sunday morning to get a shave. A barber in the neighborhood, a jealous rival of the one who shaved the officer, reported the case to Capt. Kiely. The latter entered charges against the officer. Capt. Kiely says the officer not only violated the Police Department rules, but the State law as well.

UNITED ELEVATOR MEETING.

Proposition to Increase the Bond Issue by $485,000.

Gossip of the street over the probable action of the stockholders of the St. Louis United Elevator Co. at the coming meeting, Oct. 2, grows with each day.

The meeting has been called to take a vote on a proposition to increase the bonded indebtedness of the company by $485,000, making the total bond issue $1,700,000.

Of the new issue $430,000 is needed to pay the floating debt of the company and the balance will be used as a surplus and to pay general expenses.

MISSING WITH ALL HANDS.

The Schooner Penokee Thought to Have Gone Down With Her Crew.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 20.—It is reported here that the schooner Penokee has gone down with all hands. The Penokee left Buffalo for Milwaukee with 564 tons of coal 27 days ago. Since she left that port nothing has been heard of her. The Penokees carried a crew of about seven men. There is no insurance on the boat.

From the description of the schooner which was struck by a water spout off Point Aux Barques in Saginaw Bay it is thought it may be the Penokee.

FROM A MOVING BICYCLE.

Health Commissioner Starkloff Brings Down a Moving Bird.

M. C. Brown—his shooting name—or Health Commissioner Starkloff, as he is known in every day life, has again distinguished himself.

Six weeks ago ago he broke the world's record by shooting 125 consecutive birds. This week he killed fifty consecutive birds at twenty-eight yards, one falling out of bounds. On the fifty birds killed, the second barrel was used only nine times. He used a Diamond Daly ejector gun, the same that he made the 125 record with, and smokeless powder. American E. C. The shooting was witnessed by Dr. A. Ravold, Dr. Wm. Teichmann, Edward T. Meyer, Henry Bersch, Geo. Hill, Frank Jackson and a Post-Dispatch reporter.

The shooting was up to all records, but it was in one shot that Dr. Starkloff set a new pace for pigeon shooters. He shot a flying pigeon from a moving bicycle.

It is true that Bogardus, Carver and others have shot glass balls from galloping horses, but they knew when the balls would be thrown up. Dr. Starkloff mounted C. G. Besch's bicycle, and called for a bird. He did not know which of the five regulation traps would be released. The bicycle was running over a rough stubble field, littered with corn stalks. He guided the bicycle with his left hand and held the gun in his right. The trap-puller, George Hill, pulled the trap furthest away from the doctor. The bird rose on the instant the gun cracked and the scorer cried "dead," amid the plaudits of the astonished spectators.

DR. STARKLOFF'S REMARKABLE SHOT.

STEAMERS COLLIDE.

One Cut to the Water's Edge But Her Crew Saved.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The steamers Constantine and Trevethick collided to-day off the entrance to the River Tyne. The Constantine was cut to the water's edge and was run ashore to prevent foundering. The crew were rescued by means of life line rockets.

FAILED TO OPEN THE SAFE.

Water Haul Made by Train Bandits in Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 20.—Dispatches received by General Superintendent Collins of the Wisconsin Central road from Division Superintendent March give additional particulars of the attempted train robbery near Waupeca last night. The obstruction, which consisted of two rails and a number of ties, was placed on the track. A man with a lantern stood at the obstruction and flagged the train. The engineer saw the obstruction and made an emergency stop. The engine struck the obstruction and left the track and ran the length of thirty rails. The mail and baggage cars also left the track. When the train stopped Engineer Blaine got off and ran south ahead of the train, going to Waupeca on foot. The leader of the gang took the fireman back to the express car and demanded of Messenger Robinson that he open the car door, making threats that they would use dynamite unless it was done at once. When Robinson opened the door he began shooting in the direction of the robbers and emptied his revolver in their direction. Twelve separate charges were exploded under the safe, and, failing to blow it open, the leader remarked, "It's no use trying any further." Then they left, firing several shots through the windows of the sleeper and coaches.

IN HISTORIC CHATTANOOGA.

Third Day of Chickamauga Park Dedication Exercises.

CIVIC AND MILITARY PARADE.

Addresses by Distinguished Men Reviewing Events of the War and Important Results Achieved.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 20.—The third day of the exercises attendant upon the dedication of the battlefield to the nation as a park, opened with a grand civic and military parade. The visiting cabinet officers, governors and their staffs, and the various military organizations took part. It brought more people to the city proper than have been here at any time since the dedicatory exercises began. Thousands who have been stopping in the taverns along Missionary Ridge, Lookout Mountain and other places in the suburbs were all here to-day. Then thousands came in from the surrounding country, so that the streets and thoroughfares were thronged to that degree that it was next to impossible to get about. The local police handled the crowd well, and teams and vehicles were kept off the streets over which the parade passed, and were kept moving on the side streets, so that there were no blockades.

It was a few minutes past 10 o'clock when the parade started. A platoon of police led, followed by a military band. Then came Vice-President Stevenson and party in carriages. In the succeeding carriages were Lieut.-Gen. Schofield, Secretary of the Interior Smith, Postmaster-General Wilson, Secretary of the Navy Herbert and Atty.-Gen. Harmon; United States Senators, Congressmen, Governors and staffs, Park Commissioners, Tennessee Legislators, Mayor Ochs, citizens' committee and invited guests.

Another platoon of police came next and then the United States troops, the Ohio National Guard, Tennessee National Guard, Capital City Guard of Georgia and the Chattanooga School Battalion.

The formal exercises of the day were held in the big Barnum tent near the Government building and were presided over by Vice-President Stevenson.

After music by the band the Rev. Dr. S. T. Niccolls of St. Louis offered prayer. George W. Ochs, Mayor of Chattanooga, delivered a welcoming address.

Then Senator William B. Bate of Tennessee was introduced.

SENATOR BATE'S SPEECH.

Gen. Bates spoke in part as follows:

"I wish that I could command words to give voice to my sincere appreciation of the recollections which this occasion brings with them. We have assembled on the glorious battlefields for the preservation and perpetuation of sacred memories, to advance by lessons learned here the common glory of our country. I note with inexpressible pleasure that the lapse of more than thirty years has mitigated the passions and disposed the minds of all the surviving contestants of these great battles to look back at the past with those moderate convictions which are due to a contest in which each party held principles and convictions to justify the contention."

He then referred to the erection of the Confederate monument at Chicago as an indication that sectional feeling was obliterated, and then turned his attention to the causes which led up to the war. The Missouri compromise and fanaticism had something to do with it. The denial of equal rights to equal States was the real cause. Whatever may have been the right or wrong, the South believed it was right, and in defense of this belief it accepted battle.

The South claimed and asked nothing more than equal rights, not only of persons, but of States. Less than that was subordination and not equity. War was the only resort. Its irreversible result would not be again questioned.

Publicists might draw distinctions between just and unjust wars, but in civil war for inalienable rights victory could not sanctify the wrong nor defeat invalidate the right. It had been developed that the North was more powerful than the South, and the North had outside sources to draw from. Beyond that no one could draw a rightful conclusion. That must be left to history.

After comparing the resources of the North and South at the time of the rebellion, he referred to the battle of Chickamauga, describing it from his point of view. Next he told how the South had struggled since the war to get on its feet.

In conclusion he said it was vain to surround America with fortresses, as modern cannon would demolish them. The only safety was in union. Let it be remembered that the Confederates who fought against the Federals recognize thier valor and claim their Lee, and the Federals Grant, as grand characters who adorn American history.

GEN. GROSVENOR'S SPEECH.

The next orator was Gen. Charles Grosvenor of Ohio.

Gen. Grosvenor declared that all the bitterness of the war has passed away. Time would fail to enumerate how the great achievements of science, of education, of art, of Christianity, have followed the bloody track upon which war and bloodshed and marching armies and waving banners have preceded.

He said: "Your purpose, my Southern brother, was to overthrow the Union and to establish the proposition that you had a right to go out of the Union. Our purpose was to establish the fact that the Union could not be dissolved, and that you could not go out of the Union, and that we were but a single people. That was the legislation that was demanded by the great congress of war. Both sides made the demand for which they were ready to do battle.

"And war did legislate. It began its legislative action in the sounding of the tocsin in the States North and in the States South, to which rallying cry there came forth the brightest and the best and the purest and the bravest of the people of this Southland. I cast no dishonor upon the men, who living in the South, maintained their opposition to secession and the action of their section. I am here to impugn no man's motives, to cast no slur upon any man; but I cannot but honor, from the standpoint of my observation of that which is chivalrous and brave and glorious in mankind—I cannot but honor the men who, even though they loved the Union, followed the flag of their States, and plunged into the abyss of rebellion. They were terribly wrong, but they stood ready to die for the errors they espoused."

Coming then to the battle of Chickamauga, Gen. Grosvenor said:

"The battle of Chickamauga was one of the great incidents of the war. It was fought on the 19th and 20th of September, 1863. The prize for which it was fought was a lodgment of the Union army upon the south shore of the Tennessee River. The city of Chattanooga was the objective point of a great campaign, begun on the 24th of June of that year from Murfreesboro, and pressed by Gen. Rosecrans with his magnificent army down through the great campaign of Tullahoma, halting at the foot of the mountain, ultimately extending itself over the mountains, across the Tennessee River, ultimately into the great field of death at Chickamauga. It is highly fitting that this great battlefield should be one to be perpetuated; perpetually handed down to the American people for their enjoyment, for their study, for their pride, for their affection, for their constant warning and memento. It was not a battlefield like Bull Run, either the first or the second. It was not a Chancellorsville. It was a battlefield upon which there was a more even distribution of honors, more even division of achievements, than any other great battlefield of the war. No man can claim a clean, decisive victory for either side, although the Confederates held the field at its close.

"The forces engaged in the battle (and I maintain it without hesitation or qualification, and you, my brethren of the late Southern Confederacy, must grant me this privilege in which you perhaps will not concur) I insist were so distributed that the disparagement of conditions and numbers was in favor of your side of the conflict. I know that it has often been repeated and as often denied that the troops of the Union army under Rosecrans were superior in numbers to the troops under Bragg. I cannot consent to the proposition.

"Rosecrans had in that battle 59,870 effective men and, Bragg's force of effectives was 66,857."

The speaker concluded as follows:

"I will not stop to discuss the heroism, the skill manifested upon this battlefield by either side, except to say that while looking backward and studying as we do, its history, and all the circumstances of the great conflict, and of the days that intervened before the beginning, and the days that followed its conclusion, there are many things now that might have been done differently and produced valuable results upon either side. But as a demonstration of the spirit and power of the American soldier there is no spot on the American continent the equal of Chickamauga. Over against its magnificent strategy, over against its heroic conflicts, over against its exhibition of unexcelled valor, there were fewer blunders and fewer failures and fewer mistakes than pertained to the history of any other of the great battles of the war."

WHERE IS THE MONEY?

A Deposit of $2,000 Which Ex-Commissioner Klemm Is Asked to Explain.

An ex post facto irregularity in the Park Department, involving a deposit of $2,000, is being investigated, and ex-Park Commissioner Klemm has been called on to explain.

Last month when Julius Pitzman was trying to induce the board to let him excavate and grade in the south end of Forest Park, he remarked that the Forest Park Improvement Co. had been granted similar privileges in the north end some years ago. Col. McMath was reminded that a deposit of $2,000 was made by the company, and he asked Mr. Pitzman what had become of it.

Mr. Pitzman replied that to the best of his knowledge it had never been returned and intimated that the company had charged it to profit and loss.

The deposit was made in lieu of a bond by order of the board. The Municipal Assembly was not in session and no bond could be taken. The provision made was that if any work was left undone it was to be paid for out of this fund. The Forest Park Improvement Co. left no unfinished work. The records of the Park Department do not show that any work was done out of the fund or that the deposit was ever returned. The records do not even show the receipt of the money.

An unofficial letter from Mr. Klemm to Mr. Holman acknowledges receipt of a letter relative to the money and says that the writer's family has just returned from a summer trip, and as soon as he can arrange some private business he will call at the City Hall.

Mr. Klemm's friends claim the money was returned and that the reason no entry was made of the item was that City Treasurer Espenschied refused to accept the deposit, because there was no ordinance authorising him to receive it.

STILL MISSING.

No Trace of Chicago's Three Absent Bank Employes.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 20.—Nothing has been heard to-day of three absent bank employes whose alleged shortage became public yesterday.

Ross C. Van Bokkelen, son of a deceased clergyman, who is accused of disappearing with $35,000 of the money of the Merchants' Loan and Trust Co., was for ten years an employe of the institution, and for two years past receiving teller.

The alleged shortage at the National Bank of Illinois is caused by the supposed defalcation of two of its most trusted employes. Benjamin B. Jones, the trusted paying teller, is said to be $19,800 short in his accounts, and Joseph H. Wilson, the receiving teller, is said to be $19,00 short in his ac- in the transaction.

ASTHMA IS CURABLE.

Many Who Called Yesterday at Fernow's Drug Store Already Testify to This.

If there was doubt in the mind of any sufferer from Asthma in this city as to the truth of the claims made for Dr. Schiffmann's Asthma Cure, that doubt no longer remains, provided he was among the many who called at Fernow's Drug Store yesterday and obtained a sample package free. Although many who availed themselves of this Physician's offer have not as yet had occasion to test the free sample obtained, yet a great number who have already tried the same most unhesitatingly declare in positive terms that relief was immediate; that the wretched spasms were checked; that free expectoration was induced; that a reclining position was readily assumed and gratefully maintained; that the sleep which followed was restful and unbroken, and that the morning brought a clear head and a feeling of delighted thankfulness which no words are too strong to describe. It is not pretended that a cure follows the use of the sample. Asthma and its kindred ailments are among the most stubborn known to science. But it is asserted positively and testified to by thousands that a consistent and perseverent use of Dr. Schiffmann's Asthma Cure will not only produce instant relief, but will effectually banish the trouble. This remedy is now in the hands of most druggists in the United States and is sold in packages at 50 cents and $1.00—thus bringing it within the reach of all. No more free samples can be obtained, as the Doctor now announces to the public that he will refund the money to any person who, having purchased a package of his Druggist, finds on giving it a fair trial, that it does not do exactly as claimed for it.

PROPOSED PLAN TO BUY ROME.

Prominent Catholics Say It Is Visionary and Absurd.

THE ITALIAN CELEBRATION.

Foreign Ministers Placed in a Delicate Situation, Requiring Discretion and Tact.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The project originating in London of raising one billion dollars to be placed at the disposal of the Pope as a fund with which he could negotiate with Italy for a restoration of temporal power, is regarded by leading Catholic authorities here as visionary and absurd. The reported circular issued in London has not been seen in this city, nor has the subject come to the authorities in any form. It is regarded as the emanation either of some well-intentioned but misguided individual, or else of some one desirous of arousing prejudice against the church. It is stated that no such plan is within the bounds of possibility. Even if the vast amount named were available as a means of assisting Italy in her financial embarrassment it is said with restoration of temporal power involves sentimental considerations which neither Italy nor the Pope would reduce to a question of barter.

At present, so far as is known here, the Vatican has no plan under consideration for the restoration of the Pope's temporal power, or for the establishment of a temporal authority elsewhere than at Rome. About eight years ago the differences between the Italian authorities and the Pope became so pronounced that the Vatican began to consider the feasibility of establishing the Papal See at some other place in Europe. But the Government made some concessions which were satisfactory to the Vatican in allaying the most serious friction, and there was no further consideration given to the question of the Pope's removal. It is said that while the Italian Government has been in conflict with the Vatican it never has desired the withdrawal of the Pope from Rome as the central establishment of Catholic authority at Rome is of great benefit and value to the city and to all Italy.

The Pope protests from time to time against the deprivation of his temporal power, but this, it is said in Catholic circles here, is largely formal as a means of keeping alive the lack of agreement in what Italy has enforced. No foreign power has ever taken up the Pope's cause, as all powers gave their assent to the action of Italy twenty-five years ago in assuming temporal authority over all Rome, including the Vatican.

There is much interest here as to the part which foreign Ministers at Rome will take in the Italian celebration to-day. Some time ago a European paper published the statement that all European Governments had requested their representatives at Rome to take no part in the celebration. Further than this unofficial statement nothing is known of the extent the Governments will extend or withhold their recognition to the Italian demonstration.

It is a delicate situation, and the United States Ambassador at Rome, Mr. McVeagh, is in a position requiring the exercise of discretion and tact.

The quadrennial celebration of Italy appears to stimulate cranks in this country, who are directing a volley of threatening letters to the authorities here. A short time ago a letter received at the Papal Legation declared that the members of the Papal delegation at Washington would be poisoned by corrosive sublimate unless they removed from the country by Aug. 27. Another letter fixed June 10 as the time of destruction. A later letter, accompanied by a skull and crossbones, and couched in filthy language, stated that it was fortunate for the delegate that he left Chicago as early as he did, as he would have been dynamited had he remained. These letters give no concern, as they are regarded as crank effusions similar to those more or less frequently sent to public officials in Washington.

Cardinal Gibbon's Protest.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 20.—Cardinal Gibbons would say nothing to-day concerning the published statement that he had sent to the Pope an address of protest against the Roman fetes. It is known, however, that the Cardinal did, on Sept. 6, issue such a protest addressed to the Catholic clergymen of America, in which he also requested that prayers be offered for the restoration of the Pontiff's temporal power. This, it is thought, is the address referred to in the cable dispatches.

G. A. R. DAY AT THE "EX."

Ransom Post Howlers and a Flag Drill Will Be Features.

Grand Army veterans will take possession of the Exposition to-night. Ransom Post will attend in a body and occupy box seats. The exercises incident to the evening will be interesting. Ransom Post Howlers, a glee club that can sing better than their name would indicate, will render a number of old army songs between the evening concerts. Following there will be a flag drill and salute given by fifty-two children of Garfield School under the direction of Prof. Charles Sommer. The children have been trained by Mrs. Hallen E. Day, leader of the Patriotic League of Missouri. This salute has been introduced in thirty-four States by the Women's Relief Corps, and through their efforts has been adopted by legislative enactment in twenty-four as part of the opening exercises in public schools.

MISS BERTHA WAECHTLER.

At the last evening concert Miss Bertha Waechtler will sing the cavatina from the "Barber of Seville." Miss Waechtler is the possessor of a splendid contralto voice. She has yet to win a public reputation, but all who have heard her predict for her a brilliant future. She comes of a musical family, both her father and brother being members of the Symphony Orchestra. When Mrs. Adele Laeis Baldwin left the Trilby Company Miss Waechtler was made a splendid offer to take her place and sing Ben Bolt. She declined, as she wishes to continue the cultivation of her voice. To-night's programme follows:

A feature of the Exposition which has not received the attention it deserves is the electric scenic spectacle in Entertainment Hall, under the title of Aladdin's Wonderful Lamp. With the Arabian Nights' tale as a theme and with the aid of electricity's marvelous powers a delightful entertainment is there provided, perfect in every detail, from the opening picture to the close of the exquisitely beautiful transformation scene at the last. Preceding the electric display a performance of Till's Royal English Marionettes is given, the work of the mechanical manikins being remarkable for its fidelity of imitation of human movements. Both these attractions, which are given jointly, are the best ever provided in the Exposition annex.

FLESH TURNING TO STONE.

Peculiar Ailment That Has Stricken Mrs. Amelia Rawak.

A peculiar disease, which is slowly resulting in the metamorphosis of a human body, is at present puzzling local physicians.

Mrs. Amelia Rawak of 2833 Dickson street, wife of Jacob Rawak, the well-known tobacco dealer and capitalist, is the victim. Her entire right arm, right bosom and a portion of her back has turned hard as stone. Her arm is a little larger than its normal size, and is slightly bent. In color it is pure white, and cannot be moved.

The arm has the same hard and cold feeling as a piece of marble. Mrs. Rawak is a remarkable, courageous woman, and it is only this that keeps her alive. Medicine can do her no good. Neither can an operation, as her entire system seems to be affected. Gradually this strange transformation is affecting her whole body. The attending and interested physicians say it will be only a question of time until the heart will yield to the disease.

Not only the arm, but the entire right side from the hip to the shoulder is as hard as rock. The body is not shiveled up as is usual where ossification sets in, the change having more the appearance of petrifaction. Dr. F. D. Mooney, the family physician, says that it is remarkable that Mrs. Rawak can catch her breath at all. He has held consultation with several Eastern physicians and with Drs. Marks, Bauer, and Tulholsky of this city. All say the patient is beyond medical aid.

Until last March Mrs. Rowak, who is 40 years of age, did not know what a sick spell was. Then she became troubled with pains in her chest. There was a foreign growth on her bosom, for which an operation was performed in April last. Mrs. Rawak regained her health and was apparently her old self. Two months ago she began suffering from pains in the right side.

On Aug. 1 a change took place in the patient. Her arm grew stiff and enlarged in size. It grew harder and harder. Mr. Rawak called Dr. Heine Marks Aug. 8 to consult with Dr. Mooney. He pronounced the case beyond medical aid.

Mr. Rawak wishes to take his wife to Europe for treatment, but Dr. Mooney has advised against it. She does not suffer much except that breathing is difficult.

Mrs. Rawak is the mother of seven bright, healthy children. She is quite popular in a wide social circle and her peculiar affliction has brought her the sympathy of many friends.

In view of the favorable terms and the location of several manufactories in the place, home site seekers are crowding in on the agents. However, they have still a large number of choice business and residence lots for sale.

HAS LOST HER LITTLE ONE.

Little Eddie Toolis Disappears in a Very Peculiar Manner.

Friday morning at 7 o'clock little Eddie Toolis, 3 years old, living with his parents at 1541 North Eighth street, was sent by his mother to a grocery next door, to buy some eggs for breakfast. He failed to return.

After a reasonable wait Mrs. Toolis started out in search. At the grocery he had not been seen. She scoured the whole neighborhood, but no trace of the little fellow could be found. The matter was then reported to the police.

Mr. and Mrs. Toolis have occupied their present quarters about three months, and during that period little Eddie has been sent to the grocery a dozen or more times. The grocery immediately adjoins the Toolis residence, and there could be no chance of the little one losing his way.

In Mrs. Toolis' opinion some one has stolen the boy, but why she can give no reason. The circumstances of the family are such as to permit of no reward being paid for the return of the child should that be the object of the kidnapping, and the Toolis' have no enemies that they know of. Mrs. Toolis is nearly distracted over the loss of her child.

JUDGE HOLT'S QUEER WILL.

Received by Mail When It Was Thought He Left None.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20.—Blair Lee and J. J. Darlington to-day offered for probate the will of the late Jos. Holt that was received by mail when it was supposed no will was left by Judge Holt. The witnesses to this mysteriously transmitted will are Gen. Grant, Gen. Sherman and Mrs. Sherman. The petition presented by the attorneys is that of Luke Devlin, named in the will as executor, who asks that the will be admitted to probate and letters testamentary be granted him; also that the order appointing the National Safe Deposit Savings and Trust Co. administrator of the estate be declared void. This company was appointed administrator upon the petition of the heirs at law. Oct. 18 was set for hearing all persons concerned.

There is nothing in the petition indicating that the petitioner or attorneys knew anything about the whereabouts of the will previous to its mysterious appearance in the Probate Court. Miss Throckmorton, one of the beneficiaries of the will, arrived in Washington last evening. She did not appear in court to-day, and refused to talk about the now famous will.

DREAMS FOR FAIR WOMEN.

Becker & Aal Maintain Their Prestige as Buyers of Exclusive Designs.

Becker & Aal's grand fall opening was a great success. During the entire day throngs of interested women passed in and out the store and stopped before the large display window to go into raptures over the fin-de-siecle creations shown therein. It was resplendent with novelties in capes, jackets and silk waists, mostly designed and executed by leading Parisian artistes.

Among the productions of famous costumers was a magnificent cape of finest mink fur, with slashed and flaring collar, enriched by a beautiful trimming of gold net embroidered in paillettes and studded with Parisian sapphires, by Guillot. Another dream was one by Pingot, of poppy red velvet, trimmed in cut jet, ostrich plumes and black satin ribbon. A much admired jacket was one made with seven seams and box coat effect, and carved pearl buttons. An equally charming jacket was one of similar cut, in Biarritz green, rough boucle effect. Flowers and plants, artistically arranged, graced the long salon devoted to the display of cloaks and suits, and a mandolin and guitar orchestra entertained the guests with popular airs.

Piled high in glass show cases were beautiful silk waists, now so popular, made with large balloon sleeve effect, and elaborately trimmed. "Bloomer girls" were particularly interested in the display of chic sweaters, divers colored and of newest design, ranging in prices from woolens at $2.98 to silk at $20. The bicycle department carries everything from the prevailing uniforms worn by Parisian devotees to the graceful accordion plated effects. In the children's department lines of pretty and fashionable jackets, coats and suits were exhibited. A Dunraven jacket of tan colored Vicuna cloth, trimmed in crimson velvet, was an especially attractive feature of the display.

The fad of the hour, two-button, square, short box-coats, silk-lined, in newest shades and fabrics, are offered at the remarkably low figure of $15.75. One of the handsomest garments shown was a black velvet mantle, by Guillot, trimmed with loops of black satin ribbon on the shoulders, ostrich feathers, and embroidered with cut jet.

Messrs. Becker & Aal desire to impress the fact that there are no duplicates in their fine goods.

Caroline De Muth Lastrange, Lafayette avenue, near Grand, writes: "Our physician prescribed for my husband, Captain Lastrange, of the steamer Mississippi, Loring's Corpula and Fat-Ten-U Foods. A HOME FOR ST. LOUIS MASONS.

Practical Acceptance of Quarters in the Century Building.

PROPOSITIONS CONSIDERED.

Four Sites Suggested, but Opinion Centers in Favor of the New Structure at Ninth and Olive Streets.

At last St. Louis Masons have found a home. Members of the order in St. Louis have been casting about for a temple in which all of the lodges, chapters and commanderies can hold their meetings. The matter has been practically decided, and two floors will be added to the new Century Building now in course of erection at Ninth and Olive streets, and reserved for them unless there is some unlooked for change in the order's plans.

This will necessitate the removal of the seven lodges and four commanderies and five chapters now occupying the two upper floors of the old Masonic Temple at Seventh and Market streets. One by one these organizations are taking the matter up for consideration, and within a few weeks all will have decided to remove to the Century Building unless there is a sudden change of sentiment on the part of the members.

Since the removal question has been agitated four plans have been considered. One was the proposal of W. H. Thompson and the syndicate owning the old Masonic Temple to entirely remodel the building and add two floors, which should be especially designed for the use of Masonic lodges. The improvements were to cost $125,000 or more, and the old land mark was to be so altered as to become almost unrecognizable.

After thorough consideration the plan was finally rejected. The sentiment among the members was against remaining longer in the building on account of the neighborhood in which it is located. The structure was built over twenty years ago by the Masonic Home Association, and cost $300,000. It was bonded for $200,000, and later an additional issue of $60,000 bonds was made. It was thought at that time that the building would pay for itself and become an immense source of revenue to the lodges.

Instead of property in that neighborhood enhancing in value, it remained almost stationary, and the erection of the temple failed to induce others to build handsome structures along Market street. The association was rudely awakened from its dream when the building became a drain upon the stockholders. In the due course of time the bondholders owned both building and grounds, and the Masonic lodges became renters.

The second scheme considered was the erection of a temple on Market street, near Twelfth, just across the street from the City Hall. Certain parties got an option on the ground and offered to put up the building upon a guarantee that the Masons would lease two floors. This was looked upon as a real estate scheme to boom values in the neighborhood and was not seriously considered.

Another plan was proposed by parties said to be backed by ample capital to erect a building suitable in every way for a Masonic temple at the corner of Eighteenth and Locust streets. This is said to meet with favor among a large number of members, but it comes rather late in the day and can hardly be acted upon now.

Pride in their order is a conspicuous trait among Masons and it would not require a great effort to induce them to erect a grand building that would overtop the Odd Fellows' Building at Eighth and Olive streets, which is one of the handsomest structures in the city. They could raise the funds with little difficulty and the younger and more progressive element is heartily in favor of doing it, but the memory of the disastrous collapse of the old Masonic Temple scheme deters many of the older members.

That there will be a saloon in the Century Building is being urged by a number of the opponents of the proposition to remove to that building. This objection is said to have been raised at the meeting of Missouri Lodge last night, at which the removal question came up. It was argued by those favoring removal that there would be a saloon in any large building in which the lodges could find quarters unless they build a temple of their own and specifically provide that no saloon shall be established therein.

Rev. John D. Vinell, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge, A. F. and A. M., with offices in the Roe Building, is opposed to renting quarters in a building in which there is a saloon. He is not making any particular fight on the removal of the lodges to the Century Building, but told a Post-Dispatch reporter that a saloon attachment is always objectionable to Masonic bodies. He is of the opinion that the home of a majority of the Masons in the city will be transferred to the Century Building when it is completed. Three of four lodges and chapters meet in North St. Louis, two in Carondelet, two in the hall near Lafayette Park, and a lodge and a chapter at Rose Hill. It is hardly probable that these can be induced to abandon their quarters and meet in the Century Building.

One floor in the latter will be given up to the Knights Templar and the other to the lodges. The Scottish Rite Masons may also meet there, at least until they determine finally as to a building of their own, and the lodge room will be the finest in America, beautiful in every way possible, equipped with every convenience, and furnished as luxuriously as possible.

NEWSBOYS' HOME.

Site Selected and Will Be Ready for Occupancy in a Month.

At a meeting held Thursday the Newsboys' Home Association, organized two months ago, completed plans for the establishment of a home. The three-story building, 1124 Pine street, upon which an option had been secured a few weeks ago, was formally selected, and a committee was appointed to see that it was properly furnished.

The object of the association will be to make business men out of the street waifs. They will be placed in charge of a professor and given a general education. One of the features of the home will be an extensive library. The boys, by reading the proper books, can, of course, do much to educate themselves.

In addition to caring for newsboys, homeless and runaway lads will be taken in charge. Any member of the association will have the power to question any suspicious-looking lad on the street. They will have an employment department, and through the influence of the backers of the scheme, enthusiastic boys will have an opportunity to secure office work.

Robert Rutledge, President of the association, says that the home will be in operation in three or four weeks.

SAUNDERS WILL STICK.

He Will Not Be Pushed Out of the Election Board.

Tremendous pressure is being brought to bear on Wm. Fleweilyn Saunders to induce him to resign from the Board of Election Commissioners, to which Mayor Walbridge appointed him before Gov. Stone had announced his second appointment. Up to date the efforts have had no effect upon Mr. Saunders, and to a Post-Dispatch reporter he declared frankly that he did not intend to give up the place. "There is only one way to get me out," said he, "and that is by the Mayor removing me for misconduct in office. As I have been guilty of no misconduct in office, nor do I intend to be, I don't see how anyone can expect to get me out, if it is true, as stated, that an effort is being made to oust me. I was appointed for a term of four years, and until that expires, I propose to discharge the duties as Secretary of the Board of Election Commissioners to the best of my ability, my aim being first to contribute my share to the securing of an honest and full registration of the city, fair and upright elections, and secondly, to protect the interests of the Republican party."

Further than this Mr. Saunders would not discuss the rumors of the various efforts being made to get him out of the board, because of the allegations of Ford Smith that he is not a Republican in the sense contemplated by the letter of the law making the board bi-partisan, in that Mr. Saunders did not vote the Republican ticket at the last general election.

Decidedly the most interesting of the numerous rumors is that which places Editor J. B. McCullagh at the head and front of the Saunders opposition. This story represents the editor of the party organ as assuming all the functions of a party boss, which under the conditions that have prevailed in the Republican camp during the life of the present generation of voters have been exercised by Uncle Filley. The fight that the editor has waged on "De Old Man" for thirty years and which has contributed so much to the gaiety of the nation was said to be rapidly drawing to a close because it really appeared that Uncle Filley was at last about whipped and ready to beg for quarter. The course of Mayor Walbridge had made this possible, and Editor McCullagh was said to be duly grateful to the Mayor. But when His Honor passed by so many life long party workers of recognized merit and selected Mr. Saunders for so important a post as that of Election Commissioner the editor of the organ is said to have given him to understand in unmistakable language that he had committed a mistake which would infuse new energy into the decimated and demoralized ranks of Filey's Hoodlums, and that he should lose no time in rectifying if he did not want to see the compact and well equipped Filley organization in the city crumble to pieces. More than that, Editor McCullagh is said to have sent for Mr. Saunders and advised him in the general interest of the party that was rapidly getting out of the clutch of Filley no less than the interest of his friend, Mayor Walbridge, to resign from the Election Board and resume his old position of private secretary.

When Editor McCullagh was called on by a Post-Dispatch reporter and asked about the rumor he did not deny it, "Yes," said he, "I look upon Mr. Saunders' appointment as negatively unpopular, and viewing it in that light I can't see how it is to do the party any good at this juncture. I advised Saunders in behalf of every interest involved to resign before his old position as private secretary to the Mayor was filled. I don't know, though, what he is going to do about it. One thing is certain, and that is there is no way to force him out. Mr. Saunders acknowledged to me that he voted for Cleveland in the last election, but that doesn't make him a Democrat now. A man may go to sleep a Democrat and wake up a Republican. There is no legal way of determining his politics. It is wholly a matter of conscience."

WILL LEASE HOTEL BEERS.

Steward Gregg of the Southern Will Take Charge Oct. 1.

Cecil Gregg, steward of the Southern Hotel, will lease Beers' Hotel, Grand avenue and Olive street, from its owners and present managers, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Beers. Gregg will take possession Oct. 1. Mrs. Beers said Friday morning that Mr. Gregg is satisfied with her terms, and it is not likely that there will be any hitch before the papers are signed. After eleven years of hard work Mrs. Beers thinks she is entitled to retire. She will continue to reside with her family at the hotel. She declined to say what rent Mr. Gregg will pay.

A CARD

To the Policy Holders of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of New York.

A petition is being circulated by our old enemies (the "Old Line" companies and their helpers) asking your subscription for a dollar a thousand on the insurance carried by you in this association to defray the expense of applying for a receiver. The men undertaking this unclean work are your enemies. I give you most friendly warning—do not sign the paper and do not pay them any money for this purpose. If you do, you will regret it. Remember my warning. Your friend and well-wisher,

GUST. HOEBER.

Fred Brinkman's Predicament.

Fred Brinkman has petitioned the Circuit Court to declare void a deed conveying from Sarah B. Curran to Fred Brinkman and Meta Brinkman a lot near Fourteenth and Branch streets for $1,890. The deed was left with C. C. Crone to be filed and Brinkman alleges that before it was recorded his name and that of his wife were erased and the name Meta Sunken substituted without his knowledge or consent. Brinkman says that Meta Sunken is his wife's former name. He named as defendant Meta Sunken, sometimes known as Mrs. Brinkman.

Hopeless Case of Cigarette Poisoning.

Alphonso Oribe, 17 years old, was sent to the City Hospital from his home, 3041 Lambden avenue, Thursday afternoon suffering from nicotine poisoning due to excessive use of cigarettes. Oribe has been addicted to the habit since he was 10 years old. During the past month the awful result of the habit has been asserting itself, and Oribe began to change into a nervous wreck. He is now unable to talk intelligently and is continually murmuring to himself, varying this occasionally with screams and moans. His case is considered hopeless.

Hanged Himself in His Room.

Charles Reigert, 60, a cooper, hanged himself in his room at 2534 North Ninth street, Thursday. He retired at noon and at 6:30 p. m. his room-mate, Henry W. Pein, tried to enter. He forced the door in spite of some weight on the inside and found Reigert suspended by a rope from a nail driven in the frame of the door. The body was cold. Reigert left $1.60 and a certificate of deposit for $100 in the Bremen Bank. He had roomed at the house for a week and is supposed to have a wife in the city.

Rescued from an Elevator.

Architect Gus Kirchner was the hero of Thursday night's School Board meeting. He won his laurels not in a fight, but in rescuing a young lady from an elevator. Shortly after the board adjourned the steel cage lodged fast between the third and fourth floors, imprisoning the conductor, James Leahy, and a young lady. Mr. Kirchner opened the shaft door on the third floor and received the young lady into his arms as she slid through a space a foot in width. Leahy escaped unaided.

MR. FERRIS HAS WITHDRAWN

No Longer Connected With the Committee of Safety Cases.

Councilman Franklin Ferris has withdrawn as counsel for the Committee of Public Safety. This announcement will be something of a surprise as Messrs. Ferris and Kent have done all the legal work of the committee. The withdrawal is for purely business reasons. For three months after the organization of the committee, whose purpose was to investigate charges of fraud made by both sides and devise means of securing honest elections, Messrs. Ferris and Kent devoted their whole time to hunting up evidence and taking depositions. When the evidence was complete it was presented to Circuit Attorney Zachritz and a number of indictments secured. The work did not end then, but owing to the public sentiment created, the new election law was made possible.

The indictments, backed by a determined organization and awakened public sentiment created consternation among the ward heelers. Money and influence were brought to bear to protect them. Every legal scheme and technicality was taken advantage of. Ed Miller alone has been convicted and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, but appealed. Other cases are pending. One of the most noted—that of "Blood" Whalen, who escaped conviction by a hung jury, got a change of venue, but was reindicted and will be tried here.

The expense of the investigation were heavy and for three months continuous work, it is understood, the attorneys received about $3,000 each. This did not cover prosecution of the cases. The money being exhausted the committee did not feel like making an appeal for funds to do work which State officials should do, especially as the way has already been made clear.

This condition of affairs led Mr. Ferris to withdraw.

To a Post-Dispatch reporter Mr. Ferris said: "Yes, I have withdrawn. When I was engaged, I told the committee it must be strictly on a business basis. What contribution I had to make I told them would be in cash, like any other citizen, not in services. After receiving a fee which was not large for the work done, a committee, composed of Nathan Cole and Isaac Morton, waited on me and asked me how much more my fee would be. I told them, under the circumstances I would ask nothing more, but of course the fee paid did not contemplate prosecution of the cases in court. My professional engagements do not permit me to give my time to these cases without compensation, and so I have withdrawn."

Henry T. Kent said: "I shall prosecute the Whalen case certainly. I promised some of the witnesses who stuck to me that I would fight the case to a finish, and I feel bound by professional pride after two mistrials to do so. There may be a few other cases in which I shall appear, but of course the fee paid does not bind me to attend to the prosecution in court. The fee paid was for services to date only."

SUPPORTED JUDGE STARK.

School Board Decides Against Holding an Election.

The School Board held a special meeting of twenty minutes' duration Thursday evening and by a vote of 10 to 6 adopted the report of the Election Committee recommending that an election be not held in November, in accordance with Attorney Stark's opinion that such an election would be illegal. The vote on the motion to adopt the report was:

Nays—Bus. Grawe, Lacey, McClain, Spinning and Walt.

Absent—Buttig, Kissner, Landvogt and Sheahan.

President Brockman and Director Dieckman, in casting their votes, expressed the hope that the controversy over the legality of the election would be speedily settled by the courts. Mr. Grawe, in voting no, said he had consulted attorneys and had been advised that an election would be legal.

IN FRONT OF A CAR.

Justice Harmon's Daughter Has a Very Narrow Escape.

The 17-year-old daughter of Justice Harry Harmon escaped serious injury and possibly death Friday morning at Broadway and Locust streets. Miss Harmon was riding south on Broadway on her bicycle. At Locust street she narrowly escaped a collision with a stake wagon by turning into the Broadway car tracks. In turning her wheel slipped, throwing her full length across the car track and directly in front of an approaching car. By the efforts of the gripman the car was stopped within three feet of the prostrate young lady, who was dragged from her dangerous position by Officer Hurst. She was plucky, and after brushing the mud from her apparel, mounted her wheel and continued her ride.

Polsky Follows Suit.

Treat others as they treat you, is the rule on lower Morgan street.

Morris Polsky, 827 Morgan street, emphasized this Friday when he swore out a warrant charging Sam Gardner, 825 Morgan street, with assault and battery. Wednesday morning Gardner swore out a warrant charging Polsky with the same offense. He had a black eye to show for his statement that Polsky and some friends had beaten him because of trouble growing out of business rivalry.

Polsky thought of no more forcible way of denying this than by swearing out another warrant.

Mrs. Mathilda Erbe, of 1205 North Ninth street, swore out a warrant Friday charging her husband, Charles, with wife abandonment.

BEAUTY.

How to Increase In Weight and Otherwise Improve One's Personal Appearance.

Every normally constituted man and woman wants to look well. This is natural and right. We have little sympathy for those people who through indolence or gluttony have permitted themselves to take on too much flesh. They know that by living abstemiously and taking plenty of exercise they can get back to their normal weight.

We do, however, have a great deal of sympathy for those poor, pale, thin sufferers, who either have no appetite or else whose food distresses them to such a degree that they are forced to live on a most frugal diet.

Their trouble arises from the fact that they are unable to digest sufficient food and when the stomach is out of order and fails to do its proper work, foods are worse than useless. They simply ferment in the stomach and fill the system with poisonous principles.

What these people need is something that will digest their food after it has been eaten, and it is in just such cases that the Digestive Cordial as made by the Mount Lebanon Shakers is proving remarkably successful.

It is so prompt in its action that a sense of relief almost immediately follows the first dose, and a rapid increase in weight is soon noted.

The Shakers have issued an interesting pamphlet which may be obtained upon inquiry at any drug store.

Try a 25-cent bottle of Digestive Cordial and see what it will do for you.

AS IN A LOOKING GLASS.

People Have Strange Encounters With Themselves in the Planters' Corridor.

For the benefit of the uninitiated it is here stated that the south corridor from the rotunda of the Planters' Hotel ends abruptly at the door of the bar on one side and the European cafe on the other. The perspective that extends further is a delusion and a snare. Decorators placed at the end of the corridor a huge plate-glass mirror from the floor to the ceiling, approached by a couple of stone steps, thus warning countless persons who have tried to walk through the mirror.

"See that mirror?" said the checker in the cafe to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "If you had time to sit here a few hours you'd laugh yourself to death. The other day an old gentleman of military appearance came swinging down the corridor towards this looking-glass. He caught sight of another figure beyond, apparently coming directly toward him. He began to dodge. Every time he went to the right the figure would follow and when he jumped to the left the figure was there. All the time the two were approaching each other. Finally, when a collision was imminent, the old gentleman grabbed at the other figure and burst out in a nettled tone of voice: 'Now, darn you, stand still and I'll go 'round.'

"A polite drummer was here last week. He prided himself on never forgetting a face and he shook hands enthusiastically with everyone whose face was familiar. He came down the corridor the first day he stopped here and saw a familiar figure approaching. His face took on a puzzled expression. As he approached the mirror he seemed convinced that he knew the person coming towards him, and sticking out his hand ejaculated cordially: 'Why, how do you do?' His fingers slipped over the polished surface and he darted through the door of the bar in a hurry.

"Just yesterday a gentleman came slowly down the corridor with a yearning look in his eye and approached the plate-glass mirror. The figure in the glass stopped as he did and the gentleman quried confidentially:

"'Where's the bar?'

"I think I'll write a modern edition of 'As In a Looking-Glass' from the material I'm gathering here."

Fire in the coffee roasting and spice establishment of the C. F. Blanke Tea and Coffee Co., Nos. 10, 12 and 14 South Second street, at 2:30 a. m. Friday caused a loss estimated by Mr. Blanke at $45,000, largely from smoke and water, though much damage was done the machinery and stock in Nos. 10 and 12 by fire.

The fire is supposed to have originated in the exhaust pipe of the cooling fan of the coffee roasters in No. 10.

The alarm was turned in by a German reporter, who saw the fire while passing. Twelve engines were called out. The flames spread to the roofs of all four of the buildings, which are very old, but were finally extinguished.

At the corner to the north is a lodging-house and on the south side a tenement house occupied by several families. Officers from the Chestnut Street Station aroused the inmates and in a few moments the street was full of excited and half-dressed men, women and children, whose alarm was soon quieted.

The firemen succeeded in saving the horses, delivery wagons and salesmen's buggies in a stable in the rear of the burning buildings.

Insurance adjusters examined the stock Friday morning and found much damage done the large stock of green coffee and tea by the dense smoke. The stock of ground spices is a total loss.

The C. F. Blanke Tea and Coffee Co. has a lease on a new building now being erected at the corner of Seventh street and Clark avenue, on the site of the old Missouri Medical College. Mr. Blanke stated to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he would push the completion of the new building and placing of the machinery, hoping to be located there by Nov. 1. For the present the business of the firm will be considerably hampered.

WERE A LITTLE TOO HASTY.

Equal Suffrage Club and the School Board at Outs.

The St. Louis Equal Suffrage Club was too hasty in accepting the privilege of meeting in the School Board assembly room, and the result is that at the next meeting of the Building Committee Chairman Holthaus will move that the privilege be withdrawn. Last Friday the Building Committee received a signed by Mesdames Maud Harris and Virginia Crucius asking the privilege for the club to meet in the assembly room on the third Tuesday evening of each month. The privilege was granted on condition that the club pay for extra janitor and elevator service, and that the School Board at its October meeting approve of the committee's action. The club did not wait for official notice of the committee's action or for the Board's sanction, but took possession of the hall last Tuesday evening. In consequence several members of the Building Committee are averse to letting outsiders have the use of the hall. The object of the suffrage club is to discuss the higher education of women.

CHLOROFORM POISONING.

Mabel Cafferata Has a Narrow Escape From Death.

Mabel Cafferata, living with Saloonkeeper Joseph Cafferata, had a narrow escape from death by chloroform early Thursday morning. Cafferata says it was an accident, while the woman is doubtful whether she took the drug to induce a temporary or an endless sleep.

She says that at 12:30 a. m. Thursday Cafferata went to Thirteenth and Pine streets with his brother, despite her entreaties to him not to go. Then she got the chloroform and was unconscious when Cafferata returned.

The woman is said to have been a belle of Memphis, Tenn., until she met a gambler and came to St. Louis, later uniting her fortunes with those of Cafferata.

ST. LOUIS IN THE FRONT.

These merchants agreed on two propositions, viz.: that the prospect for good business is fine and that St. Louis is the best market for their States.

The hope of good business has a solid foundation. The crops are excellent. The cotton crop is short, but there will be compensation for this in better prices. The fruit and vegetable crops are unprecedented in abundance.

With abundant crops the farmers are in better condition than they have been for years. They are in better humor and are hopeful. More money in the pockets of the farmers means better business for the merchants and manufacturers. The crops must be hauled to market and the railroad earnings will be better.

There is excellent reason for the cheerful tone of these merchants, and there is peculiar good cheer for St. Louis in their assurance that this city is in the best position to profit by the plenty of the year.

STOP THE BULL FIGHTS.

It is announced that preparations are about completed for a series of genuine Mexican bull fights in the Mexican Village of the Atlanta Exposition, and that despite the protests of humane societies the brutal shows will be given.

Atlanta has invited and is receiving the attention of the civilized world. The great Exposition which she presents to the public is a triumph of energy, art and industry. It is supposed to embody the highest achievements of American civilization, the noblest results of human progress. It is a proof of what has been done for the elevation of mankind and an inspiration to better things.

The introduction into this Exposition of humane progress of an inhuman spectacle would be a shocking incongruity. It would be in the nature of a humiliating confession that out progress is more apparent than real and that our civilization is a mere veneer to hide innate savagery.

If the consideration of honor were insufficient to prevent the bull fights, the wretched exhibitions given in Colorado would suggest the arrest of the managers for fraud. The Mexican bull fight in America is a travesty of the original, a mere side show of spiritless torture unredeemed by a suggestion of sport.

The credit of Atlanta and the State of Georgia demands a prohibition of the bull fights that will be effective.

OUR PITIABLE PLIGHT.

"The best informed bankers expect another bond issue before long," says the Wall street report of the New York World of Tuesday. This verifies the statement of the Post-Dispatch that the only question to be determined is the amount. The World's report continues: "The time and the terms are alone in doubt."

Another point of exceeding interest in this report is embodied in the statement that "many bankers and bank presidents are in favor of an issue of bonds. They want a large issue, too, and they want it immediately. They have money to loan. It is their business to loan money, and an issue of bonds makes the Government a big borrower at a very good rate compared with current figures."

An exceeding good rate, indeed; a rich goose to pluck. Millions for the bond syndicate to place the bonds, millions for their banker allies and nice pickings for the smaller sharks.

Here is the situation in a nutshell: The bankers want another bond issue, because they have money to loan and the Government is a good borrower. The gold reserve is dwindling. The talk of the necessity of doing something is increasing. The bond syndicate will make a show of protecting the reserve until Oct. 1. Then a howl and then another bond issue.

But what will the Administration do about it? Will Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle, knowing these plans, knowing exactly what the outcome must be, sit supine and permit the people to be plucked again? Will they do nothing until the bankers' howl about a panic forces them to pay millions for guardianship by a bankers' combine?

Truly for a great, rich nation the American people have fallen into a pitiable plight.

NO NEW PARTY.

The conference of representatives of the silver organizations, held in Chicago this week for the ostensible purpose of bringing about concert of action, is practically certain to result in new divisions more radical and more disastrous than the old.

The adoption of resolutions which commit the leaders to the nomination of Presidential candidates on a free silver platform means an attempt to form a new party on a single issue. This means a practical abandonment of the efforts to secure support for genuine bimetallism from either of the old parties.

This is a fatal policy. Neither free silver Republicans nor free silver Democrats in any considerable numbers will leave their parties, even to promote a cause which they have deeply at heart. This is especially the case with free silver Democrats, because the immense majority of them are convinced that the restoration of silver to its constitutional place in the currency of the country can only be accomplished by the Democratic party, which is the ancient party of bimetallic hard money. Moreover, the free silver Democrats are by no means satisfied that the attempt to secure free coinage through the Democratic party is hopeless. They believe, on the contrary, that there is a strong prospect that they will have a controlling majority in the next national convention.

Under these circumstances, any effort to form a new party based on the silver issue alone is foredoomed to defeat. It can only work harm to the cause it is professedly designed to promote. It will divide and discourage forces that should work together for feasible results and not for impracticable aims.

CITY MILK INSPECTION.

Mr. Nathan Straus of New York has probably given more attention to the question of how to secure a pure milk supply for cities than any other man living. Mr. Straus supports out of his own means supply depots in New York where absolutely pure milk is sold at cost to poor people. The milk for children is sterilized at his own sterilizing plant.

In an interview on the subject of guarding the city's milk supply Mr. Strauss said that he had concluded that an essential condition of safety is the rigid inspection of all dairies, inside and outside of the city, from which the supply is obtained. The milk from no dairy which is not under official supervision should be allowed to be sold and the milk for children should be sterilized. The improvement in the milk supply of New York brought about largely through Mr. Straus' noble efforts has greatly reduced the mortality rate among the children.

The recommendations of Health Commissioner Starkloff therefore to secure the inspection of St. Louis dairies are in line with the best methods that practical experience has devised.

A law carefully framed to enable the city authorities to close unfit city dairies, to prevent the sale of milk from country dairies not known to be free from disease and unsanitary conditions and to punish all dealers guilty of fraud or adulteration should be passed. It should provide the Health Department with a sufficient force of inspectors and enough money to enforce the law.

The present milk inspection system of this city is a disgrace. It involves a criminal disregard for the health of the people.

That tedious old person and chronic candidate for something, Simon Bolivar Buckner, has delivered an address in which he gives a number of reasons for not voting for Hardin, and he winds up by saying that he himself will vote for that gentleman. Possibly, however, this sort of talk is not so much intended to destroy Hardin as to draw attention to Buckner. The old man has been spoiled by the puffing that Louisville papers have given him ad nauseam.

The Post-Dispatch has reports to-day of some rather startling changes in the fashions for masculine wearing apparel. A ridiculous abbreviation in coat-tails is to come, and one fashionable tailor is trying to introduce a coat with a changeable lining that flashes tints of blue and purple alternately. It is possible that men are gradually approaching a condition in which they may dress as absurdly as women.

It is rather discouraging to the guaranty companies when two old and trusted bank employes work together to plunder, as has happened in the case of the National Bank of Illinois. Perhaps a little of the vigilance with which suspected employes and honest outsiders are watched would help matters if it were directed toward the "old and trusted" who are too good to be guarded.

The business men from Cincinnati, Chicago and Boston who are to visit St. Louis next month ought to find the streets clean and the new streets of the West End paved, but perhaps they will not. Much is expected of a city with a reputation for solidity, and we should not let another year go by without putting ourselves in shape to be viewed by all the world.

It does seem as if we may be drifting away from old-fashioned matrimony since women have learned business. There is a telegram to the Post-Dispatch from New York which tells of a young married woman who has left her husband rather than give up her job of typewriting.

A pauper with an estate of $10,000 should hardly be put upon an overtaxed community, but this appears to have been done here. No charitable institution is going begging for inmates that well-to-do people should be gathered in and supported.

If Mayor Strong and Commissioner Roosevelt accept the invitation to review a parade next Wednesday of all New Yorkers who demand more liberal Sunday laws, it is to be feared that these officials will scarcely have time for their religious duties.

It astonishes the world to read of so many crimes committed in Boston by women. It is to be apprehended that the representative Boston woman has become so absorbed in intellectual studies as to be wholly oblivious to the condition of her fallen sisters.

When American skeletons are being found in the European mountains, isn't it about time for American tourists to begin to consider the scenery of their own country?

John D. Rockefeller, whose fortune is estimated at $180,000,000, has just lost $20,000 worth of chickens and coops by fire. He will scarcely feel this misfortune, however. Many geese continue to lay golden eggs for him.

The big apple crop in Kentucky is causing apple brandy distilleries to "spring up like mushrooms." The Prohibition brethren over there will have to take some steps to have the apple orchards thinned out.

It isn't a healthful state of national affairs when Treasury officials have to resort to "profound secrecy and silence," but it comes with monometallism, and there is no remedy but bimetallism.

The Post-Dispatch's big thermometer has done good work during the September heat. The mercury and the Post-Dispatch's circulation have been rising together.

If Gov. Morton were to be made President he would require every member of his Cabinet to wear breeches that cost $32.

Miss Elsie Waterbury rode astride at the Gymkhana races. It is scarcely necessary to add that Miss Waterbury was watched.

Boss Filley may feel encouraged by the success of Boss Quay and Boss Platt, but he will do well to reflect that Cyrus Walbridge has been long enough in the drug business to know what will put a man to sleep.

There is said to be a Democratic campaign fund of $500,000 in Ohio, and that manufacturers in the Republican party will have to be bled to meet it. The situation in Ohio does not fill the friends of honest politics with hope.

Love Is a God.

From the New York Mercury.

Love is a god
With opal eyes,
Where hidden promise of pleasure lies,
Like the fitful gleam of fire flies;
Love is a god.

Love is a god
Whose lips are stone,
Until we press them 'gainst our own,
And find to love and warmth they're grown.
Love is a god.

Love is a god
With heart of snow,
Which melts to heaven's divinest glow,
Melts into dearly cherished woe—
Love is a god.

Love is a god
Whose feet are clay,
Else would he be too fair to stay,
Else would the stars call him away;
Love is a god.

WELL-KNOWN ST. LOUISANS.

August Maune.

August Maune was born in Franklin County, Mo., in 1837. He came to St. Louis at the age of 12, and was educated in the public schools. He engaged in the grocery business at the age of 20 and conducted one of the largest establishments in the North End. He began investing in real estate about ten years ago, and is at present one of the largest holders of West End realty.

Five years ago he turned his business over to his sons, ex-State Senator L. Maune and August M., Jr., and retired from active business.

A Marked Improvement.

From the Marshall Democrat-News.

Under the management of Col. C. H. Jones there is a very marked improvement in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch as a newspaper. Col. Jones is a brave champion of the rights of the people and the people appreciate the fight he is making for the rehabilitation of the white metal. We look for continued improvement in the Post-Dispatch, as Col. Jones is considered one of the ablest newspaper men in the United States.

A motor for tin cans
And classed in general as "ornery."

Who
Can make a boat win three races
Out of three
By coming in ahead
Just once.
Hail to

PRAYING FOR DURRANT.

Letters Written by Women to the Man on Trial for Murder.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 20.—When George B. King, the organist of Emanuel Church, was on the witness stand in the Durrant trial Wednesday, the prosecution, by an oversight, failed to examine him on two material points. When King was first interviewed in reference to the murders by representatives of the different newspapers he denied all knowledge of anything which in the remotest way might connect Durrant with the commission of either crime.

His denial was made in a way which left a strong impression that the young man was not telling the truth. It was then that the suspicion arose that he knew more than he cared to tell. This opinion rapidly crystallized into an idea that he knew something he did not dare to tell. His father became frightened at this condition of affairs and the result was young King's important announcement to the police that he was in the church that afternoon and saw Durrant in a strangely agitated state.

Durrant receives letters almost daily from women in different parts of the country, assuring him of their firm belief in his innocence and wishing they could be with him to comfort him. In every instance thus far the letter has come from some one whom he has never seen or heard of. Among a number of tender missives received recently was one signed by a woman giving the name of Mrs. L. Pangboort, of Aurora, Ill. The author assured Durrant that she knew he was innocent; that her belief had come to her as an inspiration and that she would never be convinced to the contrary. She also assured him that she prayed nightly for his speedy deliverance.

HOW SHE FOOLED A TRAMP.

A Story Which Shows the Wit of a Jersey Girl.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 20.—Miss Josie Wren is a bright girl. She was alone yesterday when a tramp called and got ugly when refused a meal. He sat on the steps declaring that he would not move until he had been given something to eat. It was then the young woman struck a bright idea. She took down a metal clock and wound up the alarm, fixing it so that it would go off immediately. She then went to the front room, where the alarm bell and her voice could be heard by the tramp. As soon as the bell had stopped ringing, the tramp heard the following:

"Is this the police station?"

"Well, Sergeant, there is a tramp sitting on my steps who has been there for the past hour. He is a big antelope and I want him locked up. Will you please send an officer to attend to him?"

"All right, that will do. Much obliged. Good-bye."

Before this one-sided conversation had been concluded the tramp had gathered himself together and made down the street as fast as his legs could carry him.

DELIGHTED DUDES.

Viewing the Exhibit of the Merchant Tailors' Society.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The semi-annual exhibition of the Merchant Tailors' Society sets the fashion for a large number of well-dressed New Yorkers. It opened yesterday at No. 241 Fifth avenue. Coats, trousers, waist-coats and overcoats with proper winter cut hung in profusion in the rooms and excited dudes ran in and began examining them as soon as the doors opened.

The chief fact that struck visitors was that this season the skirts of cutaway coats are much shorter than they were last. The tails come to an abrupt termination just too late to afford the spectator a fair view of the rear suspender buttons of the wearer. This saves a good deal of cloth, but it makes a cutaway look like a sacque coat that has had the corners snipped off.

Dress suits come this year in diagonals and undressed worsteds. J. C. Weiss, a tailor, will appear in a new sort of evening apparel. It is a plum colored diagonal, with a changeable lining that flashes tints blue and purple alternately at the astonished beholder. The coat and the waistcoat have velvet collars and there is a double stripe of braid down the legs of the trousers. Mr. Weiss has asked all his customers to agree to appear in this dazzling sort of garb, and feels hopeful that his luck will be good.

The ordinary overcoat will be much shorter than last year, but the surtout, or excessively long overcoat, will be as long as ever.

There will be loose cuffs on the sleeves of the coaching coats, just as there were last year.

Covert coats are much shorter than before, and they are single-breasted, with fly fronts, lap seams, five rows of stitching on the seams, two slits six inches long on the side, five buttons in front and with tabs on the collar.

Trousers are very much narrower at the bottom this year. The fashion in arms excites the suspicion that the puff sleeve of the feminine gender is going to be adopted by the male, but experts say that this fear is not justified and that the sleeves will get narrower.

Waist-coats made of buff leather cloth and of chamois are a novelty, as is also a water-proof cloak for the legs of equestrians. No one at the exhibition knew how to put it on. It was agreed, however, that the effect would be great.

HUNGER AND THEFT.

Pitiful Tale Told by a Woman Burglar in Nashville.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 20.—Mrs. Nellie Reach, a white woman, was arrested last night for burglary. The story is a pitiful one. Some months ago she, her husband and infant child came to this city from the country. They failed to get work and on Wednesday they were starving, and made desperate by hunger she entered her neighbor's house and took a watch, which she pawned for a pittance with which she bought food. She acknowledged the deed and it is thought will not be prosecuted.

HEART RHEUMATISM.

Hotel Clerk Harry Watson Drops Dead Before His Dresser.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., Sept. 20.—Harry Watson, one of the oldest and best known hotel clerks in the West, dropped dead in front of his dresser in his room at the Tremont House in this city this morning. Rheumatism of the heart is ascribed as the cause of death. He was well known in the hotels in this city, Topeka, Nevada, Mo., Jacksonville, Ill., and Springfield, Ill.

W. W. Watson, a boot and shoe merchant of Springfield, Ill., is his brother. He was down to breakfast as usual this morning, and returned to his room immediately. A half hour later he was found dead on the floor. In falling his head struck the corner of his trunk, and his scalp was fractured.

USED A RAZOR.

A Young Man in Chicago Slashes His Father and Brother.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 20.—Albert J. Leitch, 69 years old, ordered his son John, 37 years, to return a peach to a basket from which he had taken it. John refused to do so and the father, with the assistance of another son, George, attempted to enforce the order. The peach was wrested from John and the father and second son were about to eject him from the place when he drew a razer and slashed his brother across the right cheek. George retired. John turned the razor upon his father and cut him a number of times, one cut just behind the ear, which, it is believed, will result fatally. John made no effort to escape and was locked up. The old gentleman is reputed to be wealthy. In explaining his action John said: "It was my business to cut somebody's throat."

BOLD DAYLIGHT BURGLAR.

Ross Lockman's Daring Thieving Tour Through North St. Louis.

The arrest of Ross Lockman, alias Kid Ross, 26 years old, by Detectives Thomas Tracy and Walsh Thursday has turned out to be one of the most important captures made by the local police for some time. Lockman is well known to the police of all large cities as an expert daylight burglar, and has served terms in more than one penitentiary. He was arrested here six years ago and indictments were found against him for burglarizing about fifteen tailor shops. On account of his age he was let off with a light sentence. This time, however, he will not be apt to get off so easy, as enough people identified him Friday morning, as the man who robbed their houses, to send him to the penitentiary for a long term.

The desperate character of the man is shown by the fact that he was released only a short time ago from the Joliet Penitentiary, where he served a three-year sentence for burglary in Chicago and shooting a detective while resisting arrest.

Lockman arrived in St. Louis Wednesday morning, and lost no time in getting to work. That afternoon he stole a horse and two-seated rig from the Stelemann-Floreka Distilling Co., 1200 North Broadway. He proceeded with it to the residence of Mr. Sandreck, an engineer, at 922 Benton street, where he entered the house and stole even suits of clothes. He deposited the plunder in the wagon, then visited the residence of John Frone, who lives next door. There he secured a quantity of jewelry. He next gave his attention to the house occupied by Peter Klunk, 926 Benton street. The noise he made in trying to effect an entrance through a rear window alarmed the inmates.

Lockman fled, driving off with the wagon at a furious rate. The whole neighborhood was aroused at the time and claim to have had a good look at the thief as he drove away.

His next job was at the home of Joseph Scherer, 1908 North Ninth street, where he secured a quantity of clothing and jewelry, also tried to enter the home of Joseph Bernhardt, who lives up-stairs, but again was surprised by the inmates and forced to flee. Both of these families claim to have had a good look at him as he escaped.

Late Thursday afternoon Lockman came to the conclusion that he had exerted himself enough for one day, and after "planting" his body he again illustrated his boldness by driving the rig to the Chestnut Street Station, where he turned it over to the Sergeant in charge, saying he had found it deserted at Fourth and Clark avenue. He gave the Sergeant his name as Harry Bernell.

The arrest of Lockman reflects a good deal of credit on Detectives Tracy and Walsh. Thursday afternoon they dropped into the saloon of Tom, alias "Snake" Kenney, at second and Carr streets. They found Lockman standing at the bar and promptly arrested him. When searched a complete set of skeleton keys were found in the leg of his trousers, suspended from a chain. A loaded derringer of large calibre was found in his upper vest pocket.

IN THE POOR-HOUSE.

An Insane Patient Has been Left a Legacy of $4,000.

Inquiry is being made by the Board of Health into the circumstances under which Mrs. Catherine Wekinuelle was admitted as a pauper to the insane department of the Poor-house almost a year ago. The woman is worth some $4,000 and has an income of $24 a month. Last Friday her husband, Frederick William Wehmueller, died at his home, 2939 North Ninth street, at the age of 74, leaving a will, the filing of which has caused the Board of Health to cite the executor, Charles F. Querie, of 4005 North Main street, to show why Mrs. Wehmueller shall not be classed as a pay inmate. The will has some interesting provisions. Rev. Charles L. Obermeyer, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Zion Church, which Mr. and Mrs. Wehmueller attended, is said to have secured Mrs. Wehmueller's admission to the Poor-house.

The will provides, first, that all the property shall be held in trust for Mrs. Wehmueller by Mr. Querie and her needs provided for from it. It then declares that at her death what remains shall be distributed, $250 to the German Evangelical Orphan Home and $250 to the German Evangelical Lutheran Hospital; $3,500 shall be paid the Concordia College for the support of two worthy boys desiring to study for the ministry and the remainder to German Evangelical Lutheran Zion Congregation for the erection of a new church. The will nominates Adolph Obermeyer, son of Pastor Obermeyer, as one of the boys to be educated, and in the event he cannot avail himself, Rev. Obermeyer's other son, Charles T., is to receive the benefit.

Mrs. Querie was seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter Friday. He stated that he knew little of the circumstances of Mrs. Wehmueller's admission to the Poor House. He understood it to have been secured a year ago by Rev. Obermeyer at the request of the woman's husband. She had been at Lutheran Hospital prior to that, but Mr. Querie understood that they had objected to accommodating insane patients. He stated that he would request the Board of Health to retain Mrs. Wehmueller at the institution as a pay inmate.

"The inventory of the estate," said Mr. Querie, "shows it to amount to about $4,800, which is all in real estate, renting for $24 a month. We found $4 cash. Mr. Wehmueller subsisted on the $24 a month which he collected from his tenants."

RELIGIOUS ENTHUSIASM.

Kate Nash Fasted Until She Fainted in the Street.

Kate Nash, 17 years old, a servant living at 4168 Lexington avenue, was taken to the Dispensary this morning a victim of religious enthusiasm. She fell unconscious at 1400 O'Fallon, and it was supposed she was suffering from sunstroke. At the Dispensary she was revived by the use of ammonia, and Dr. Newcomb diagnosed the case as epilepsy superinduced by fasting. She said she had been fasting for the church for several days. She was sent to the City Hospital.

NOT AN AVERAGE SEPTEMBER.

Big Increase Shown Over the Corresponding Period Last Year.

Observer Frankenfeld says this is an average September. He means to be consoling by so saying, but it is rank subterfuge. The fact remains that for ten straight days the mercury has passed the 90 mark. The fact that it happened before affords no consolation. One thing is certain, and that is the present month has been a terrible sight hotter than at the same time last year. A comparison of temperatures for the first eighteen days of September, 1894 and 1895, is furnished by the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney Dry Goods Co. THE ODDS ON THE BIG FIGHT.

Bookies Not So Confident That It Will Take Place.

FROM THREES TO EVENS.

At First Liberal Odds Were Given That Dallas Would Be the Scene, but It's Even Money Now.

Eckhardt's Exchange at New Orleans, where they have been making book on the events scheduled to take place at the Dallas fistic carnival on Oct. 31, have withdrawn their offer to bet 3 to 1 that the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight would take place at Dallas, and also changed their odds on the results. The following table shows the change in the betting:

Aug. 5.	Sept. 17
3 to 5..Corbett	7 to 10
6 to 4..Fitzsimmons	5 to 4
7 to 8..O'Donnell	4 to 5
7 to 8..Maher	4 to 5
4 to 5..Ryan	4 to 5
4 to 5..Smith	4 to 5
2 to 5..Corb'-Fitz contest last 20 r'ds.	2 to 5
5 to 4..Corb'-Fitz con. don't last 20 r.	5 to 4
4 to 5..Ryan-Smith contest last 20 r.	5 to 4
4 to 5..Ryan-Smith con. don't last 20 r.	5 to 5
4 to 5..O'Donnell-Maher con. last 20 r.	2 to 5
4 to 5..O'Don.-M'r con. don't last 20 r.	5 to 4
5 to 1..Corbett combination	5 to 1
8 to 1..Fitzsimmons combination	8 to 1
3 to 1..Corbett-Fitz contest takes place at Dallas, Tex	even

As will be seen, Eckhardt & Co. have raised the odds on Corbett from 3 to 5 to 7 to 10, which is a point higher than they were, and the price on Fitzsimmons has been lowered one point, making a change of two points in the betting between the two heavyweights. The principal change in the odds is upon the Corbett-Fitzsimmons contest taking place at Dallas. Three to one has been offering since the book was opened on Aug. 5 up to yesterday, but the present odds are even money. This would seem to indicate that the bookmakers are losing confidence in the Florida Athletic Club's ability to bring the fight off.

NO REFEREE.

Chief Official for the Big Fight Was Not Chosen.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The meeting today for the purpose of selecting a referee for the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight was without result. No referee was chosen. The matter was deferred at the instance of Fitzsimmons' manager until Oct. 30, one day before the fight. Neither Corbett nor Fitzsimmons was present nor was W. A. Brady, Corbett's manager.

Martin Julian, who represented Fitzsimmons, said he favored the selection of "Yank" Sullivan as referee.

LOUIS LEMP'S BET.

Has Wagered $200 That Corbett Beats Fitz Inside of Thirteen Rounds.

Louis Lemp, son of the millionaire South St. Louis brewer, W. J. Lemp, and Alex Kanta have made the first big bet on record in St. Louis as to the result of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight. Lemp is a great admirer of Corbett, and he has wagered Kanta $200 even that the champion will defeat Fitzsimmons inside of thirteen rounds. Lemp has seen all the big battles at New Orleans, and he will be among the St. Louis sports at Dallas this fall.

CONDEMNS DUNRAVEN.

Admiral Fitzgerald Says His Course Was Open to Much Criticism.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The Times gives prominence to-day to a letter from Admiral Fitzgerald, in which the writer says that Lord Dunraven must expect that his conduct in the matter of the America's Cup match races will be severely criticised, and that it compares unfavorably with that of Mr. Iselin. His fair-minded countrymen, Admiral Fitzgerald continues, have cause to regret the course of Lord Dunraven, and all true lovers of sport must regret that Mr. Iselin's generous offer to resail the second race was declined.

Technically, the Admiral says, Lord Dunraven's refusal to sail on the third day was right, but the question should have been treated upon broader grounds. Americans throughout have shown the true sporting instinct. The impartial verdict of nautical history, the letter concludes, will say that Lord Dunraven has failed to uphold the best traditions of English yacht racing.

NEW BOWLING RULES.

The American Congress Made Some Radical Changes in the Game.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The new bowling rules, as revised by the American Bowling Congress, which met in this city last week, have just been made public. Some radical changes have been made. Every rule appertaining to the game of tenpins was thoroughly overhauled.

Rule 9 is probably the most important. It changes the game from three balls to each frame to two balls, and in no way interferes with the present method of scoring.

The next convention of the American Bowling Congress will be held in Brooklyn during January.

SATURDAY'S BICYCLE RACES.

The West End Club Meet Will Be a Success.

The West End Club's bicycle races at the grounds at De Hodiamont Saturday will no doubt draw out immense crowds. This is the club's first meet, and it should be a great success. The prizes offered are sufficiently encouraging to good riding and the track is in the best condition it has been in for some time, which will permit of record-breaking trials.

The Class B events will be hotly contested. Wing, Maxwell and the Cabannes are in good shape.

F. W. Buckley has been training at the track hard every day. Yesterday he went an eighth of a mile paced in a little less than fifteen seconds. This shows that he is in condition, and his friends believe he will have no trouble in defeating Joe Henley in the aged limit race. Henley is a good man, and at one time held the championship of Kansas, but he is not quite as speedy as Buckley. Buckley was good enough to bring the limit down to 24 years, which will let in a few others.

Harding, Laing and Howard will make it interesting for all Class A men.

Young Cooper and Nagel will have it all their own way in the novice race.

A GOOD DAY.

Cabanne Won One First, Two Second and One Third Prize.

Dute Cabanne won one first, two seconds and one third prize at the National Circuit races at Reading, Pa., Thursday. His first was in the three-mile handicap, which he won from scratch. The summaries:

Half mile, open, Class B, eleven starters—Cooper won, Maddox second, Cabanne third and Titus fourth. Time, 1:11. Bliss, Heifert, Jenney, Terrell, Murphy, Wells and Mullikan also ran in order named.

Mile, open, Class B, final heat—Cooper won, Cabanne second, Titus third and Bliss fourth. Time, 2:18¼. Maddox, Jenney, Brand and Terrell also ran. Murphy fell. Heifert paced.

Quarter mile open, Class B—Cooper won, Cabanne second, Murphy third and Jenney fourth. Time, :31.

Three-mile handicap, Class B—Cabanne, scratch, won; Maddox, 25 yards, second; Jenney, 50 yards, third; Church, 150 yards, fourth. Time, 7:18.

BROWNS' LAST GAMES.

The Club a Success Financially, but Otherwise a Failure.

The Browns will meet the Chicago team Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and next week Cincinnati and Pittsburg will be the visitors, and with those clubs the season ends in St. Louis. From a financial standpoint the Browns have not been a failure this season, for Chris has put a snug little sum down in his pocket as the result of their many defeats and few victories. But from a playing standpoint the team's best friend must do nothing else than call it a failure. Landing next to last is not what the St. Louis fans want, and as the fans "pay the freight" they ought to be given better men next year.

(New York's only winning pitcher.)

A Strong Illinois Club.

Among the many strong amateur teams in Central and Eastern Illinois the Kansas team takes high rank. This team has not sustained a single defeat this season and has met the crack teams of Paris, Charleston, Mattoon, Marshall and other Illinois cities. On last Tuesday they defeated the Charleston team on the latter's grounds by a score of 18 to 4. The Kansas battery was Eiteljorg and Arterburn.

ED BUNN REINSTATED.

Rey Del Mar's Owner Will Be Allowed to Ride Again.

Ed Bunn, owner of Rey del Mar and one of the best known jockeys in America, after a period of several months on the ground has been reinstated and will be given another chance in the saddle at the Fair Grounds. Bunn is a first-class jockey and if he has sense enough to stick to the straight and narrow path, thus keeping out of trouble, it will not be long before he can have his choice of the best mounts at the Fair Grounds. Bunn's horse, Rey del Mar, has been performing very consistently of late, having won three straight races, and when his owner returns to the saddle the public will expect him to try in the same consistent manner. Bunn has just recovered from a severe attack of sickness and Rey del Mar has shown constant improvement ever since his owner was able to take charge of him again. Rey del Mar is by Free Knight and he is about the best horse that stallion has ever gotten in the stud. John C. Gray, who owns Free Knight, witnessed Rey del Mar's race Thursday. He says his mare Wampego could beat Rey del Mar at any distance, but that she was about the only thoroughbred ever sired by Free Knight that was able to do it. Heavy going is Rey del Mar's long suit, although, as his race yesterday would indicate, he can run fast enough on a good track to beat high-class horses.

Results at the Tracks.

GRAVESEND—The winners: Alarum, Sir Excess, Annot Lyle, The Pepper, Harrington, April Fool.

OAKLEY—The winners: Ramiro, Carrie Lyle, Olive, Mobolaska, Judith.

Hanlon Wants to Meet Harding.

TORONTO, Ontario, Sept. 20.—Ed Hanlon, the ex-champion oarsman of the world, has written to a friend in England to endeavor to arrange a match with Harding, the English champion. Hanlon will challenge for the Sportsman's cup and $2,500 a side, over the Thames or Tyne courses. Should Hanlon win he would insist the next cup race take place on still water in America, thus creating a sculler's America's cup.

IN LOVE WITH HER MACHINE.

Why a New York Type-Writer's Husband Drove Her Forth.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Lottie Chase is a charming young typewriter in a Cedar street law office who recently married with the express understanding, she says, that she was to keep on typewriting. Now her husband insists that she quit it. Lottie says she won't. Chase drove her from his house and Lottie says she loves her machine better than she does her husband.

TERRIBLE, IF TRUE.

Reported Killing of Four Men in a Room by One.

M'KINNEY, Ky., Sept. 20.—News of the most terrific battles was reported from Adams & Trowbridge's distilleries in Pulaski County fifteen miles south of this place to-day.

Lee McKinney says last night five men, one of them named Cain, of Mintonville, engaged in a game of poker in a little 12x12 room in the distillery. A dispute over the game aroue, and the shooting began. Cain alone escaped, and is accredited with slaying all the dead. Most of the slain were either shot through the head or heart. Cain, it is reported, is evading arrest, but the officers are hot on his trail.

The dead men lie side by side in the meal room of the distillery awaiting identification and the order of friends.

DELEGATES ELECTED.

Proceedings at the Central Illinois M. E. Conference.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 20.—The principal matter before the session of the Central Illinois M. E. Conference this morning was the election of delegates by the General Conference. But one ballot was taken and two of the five delegates were chosen on this. They are: Rev. H. D. Clark, Presiding Elder of the Galesburg District, and J. G. Evans of Abington, President of Hedding College. The remainder of the morning was devoted to the examination of charters.

WITH AND WITHOUT.

Court of Criminal Correction Visitors Must Wear Coats and No Hats.

Chagrin and fear played fleetingly over the countenance of Thomas Evans, a barber, when the wrath of Judge David Murphy of the Court of Criminal Correction fell upon him Friday. Evans was the prosecuting witness in a charge of grand larceny against William Miles and John Francis, both barbers. Evans charged them with having robbed him of $44 while all three were drinking in a saloon. All the men were attending a barber school at Ninth and Chestnut streets.

Evans swore that Miles and Francis had stolen the money.

"Was the money yours?" asked Judge Murphy.

"Well, some of it was."

Evans was excused, and James Weiher, coatless and confused, was put on the stand. Judge Murphy overlooked the confusion, but the coatlessness was inexcusable. Weiher had just finishing declaring that the money belonged to Francis and Miles when the court frowned ominously and addressed Attorney Percival Adams for the defense: "Mr. Adams, if you can't instruct your witnesses to come in here looking respectable, don't bring them here at all," he said. "Mr. Weiher, you are excused, and you will leave this court room instantly." Weiher complied.

Then Judge Murphy turned to the prosecuting witness. "Evans, I am afraid you won't stay in the city to appear against these men, so I will hold you and these defendants to answer to the Grand-jury in bonds of $500 each." Neither Evans nor the defendants could give bonds, so all were locked up in jail.

Surprise was evidenced in the court at this action and scarcely had it disappeared before a sleepy-looking individual walked into the court-room with his hat on.

"Hats off!" shouted the Sheriff.

"Bring that man up here," said the Court, with an ill-boding look.

"How long have you lived in St. Louis?" he asked.

"Twenty years."

"Have you ever been in a court-room before?"

"No."

"Well, have you ever been in a church?"

"No."

"You get out of this court-room and don't come back again."

And with many squeakings and great labor the machinery of the Court of Criminal Correction began once more to grind.

Pardoned by Gov. Stone.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 20.—Gov. Stone to-day at the request of Gov. Upham of Wisconsin pardoned James C. Barton, alias Bryant, who was sentenced by the St. Louis Criminal Court at the October term 1894 to two years in the Penitentiary for grand larceny. Gov. Upham had a diamond pin stolen when he was inaugurated, and the wife of Bryant assisted in its recovery. For this reason he asked Gov. Stone to grant the pardon.

Thomas J. Wooden was also pardoned. He was sentenced at the June term 1891 of the Clark County Circuit Court to ten years in the Penitentiary for forgery in the second degree. He was drunk when the crime was committed, and the Judge, Prosecuting Attorney and many citizens asked his pardon.

Laura Belkes of 1430 North Twelfth street witnessed the theft and recognized Brookings. She told Sergt. Shoemaker and Officer Thompson, who arrested Brookings at his home, 123 North Tenth street, Friday morning and a warrant was issued.

TRUST CASE ARGUED.

Action to Prevent It Doing Business in New York.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 20.—The hearing by Atty.-Gen Hancock in the action brought by C. A. Whelan of this city against the American Tobacco Company, to restrain the trust from doing business in this State, was begun today. Joseph M. Choate, with Oudin and Oakley, appears for the American Tobacco Co., and E. N. Wilson of this city, with Einstein and Guterman of New York as counsel for Mr. Whelan.

Mr. Wilson opened the argument, fully setting forth the allegations of the petitioners, and charging the trust with conspiracy. The capital stock of the corporation, he said, was $25,000,000, although the actual assets of the firms comprising the trust was not more than $5,000,000. He contended that the capital was fictitious and that the avarice and greed of the trust would never be satisfied until it had eaten up all other corporations.

The American Tobacco Co., Mr. Wilson argued, further, was gotten up for the control of the market.

Col. Fuller presented the claims of the American Tobacco Co. He contended that the price of cigarettes has been lower since the American Tobacco Co. was organized than ever before. Since its organization the trust has not absorbed any other manufacturers. The trust alleges, he said, that it increased its business in other lines of tobacco much more than in cigarettes. It is admitted that the trust fixes the prices of its own goods, and that in certain cases it has refused to consign its cigarettes to certain jobbers because its own goods were being improperly used.

Col. Fuller presented an affidavit denying the allegation of George J. Whelan, also another affidavit from Secretary Brown of the trust, denying that jobbers were intimidated or threatened. He then presented some resolutions adopted by the jobbers and wholesale dealers of New York City, in which the criticism against the methods of the trust are denounced as malicious and unwarranted.

A letter was read signed by a number of dealers in this city urging the company not to change its course, the signers declaring themselves as not being in sympathy with C. A. Whelan & Co. in their contentions.

BLOCKED ONCE MORE.

Southern Electric Company Interfered With by the Northern Central.

The efforts of the Southern Electric Railway Co. to secure a route to and from Howard street on the north have again been blocked, this time by Capt. Robert McCulloch, manager of the Northern Central Line. The Southern Electric some time since secured the passage of an ordinance permitting the construction of a loop at Howard street and the use of the tracks of the several lines on Sixth and Seventh streets at an agreed rental. A commission fixed the annual rental for the Northern Central tracks between Wash and Locust streets at $424.68. This sum was paid by the Southern Electric Co. July 19, but did not satisfy the Northern Central Co., being considered about one-fourth of what it should be. The question was appealed to the Circuit Court, where it now rests.

In the meantime the Southern company made preparations to use the tracks of the Northern Central, having given bond for $20,000 indemnity should the case in the Circuit Court go against them.

Capt. McCulloch has now refused permission to use the tracks, and the work of putting up the trolley wire on the Northern Central poles has been peremptorily stopped.

ENLARGED ITS HOLDINGS.

Cupples Realty Co. Purchase Spruce Street Property.

At noon Friday the Cupples Realty Co. created quite a stir by purchasing a large "chunk" of realty situated on the north side of Spruce street, between Eleventh and Tenth street.

At present the Cupples Realty Co. control nearly all the property on Spruce, between Seventh and Tenth streets, which has been improved by them in the past seven years with tall buildings, at a cost of $2,000,000.

Their latest addition is a five-story building being erected between Ninth and Tenth on the south side of Spruce. The lot purchased by them Friday has a frontage of 55 feet, located near Tenth street. It is reported that they will improve this with an eight-story wholesalers' building to cost $300,000.

The cost of the lot was $17,000.

Costly West End Mansion.

That portion of the old Delmonico tract fronting on Washington avenue, purchased several years ago by Morris Glaser of the Glaser Manufacturing Co., will be improved with a large stone mansion to be occupied by the owner.

Ground will be broken for the improvement next week. Architects Link, Rosenheim & Ittner designed the proposed residence. It will be two and one-half stories in height. The walls will be constructed of buff-colored limestone with a red Spanish tiled roof. The stone will be beautifully carved.

The building itself will measure 65x55 feet, standing in the center of the lot, which has a frontage of 90 feet by a depth of 250 feet. The cost of the dwelling will be $35,000. The interior trimmings will be of hardwood. Everything will be strictly modern.

New Five-Story Building.

John Lumsden has let the contract for the tearing down of the rookeries, No. 807, 809 and 809½ North Sixth street, to make way for a five-story retail block. The lot measures 37½x150 feet and is on the west side of the street, between Morgan street and Lucas avenue. M. A. Wolff & Co., realty agents, induced Mr. Lumsden to make the improvement and have secured a tenant for him in John W. Losse, the tailor. The new structure will be completed June 1, 1896. Mr. Losse will lease for ten years at $4,500 a year.

Home Sites at Auction.

The J. T. Donovan Real Estate Co.'s auction of West End building lots will be held Saturday at 4 p. m. The lots are at King's highway and Maple avenue and at Aubert and Page. The property is highly improved and is convenient to the Suburban and Lindell lines. The sale will take place on the premises.

EXCHANGE FOR SMALL BILLS.

Local Bankers Will Not Ship Gold to Washington Unless Necessary.

When Secretary Carlisle foresaw a few weeks ago that there would inevitably be about this time a heavy drain on the $100,000,000 gold reserve of the Treasury, he made an appeal to the banks of the country to assist the Government in maintaining its gold reserve by shipping to Washington all the gold coin and certificates that they could spare. St. Louis has not been slow to respond, as already the Commercial National Bank of this city has forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury $100,000 of gold, for which it will receive in return that amount in small bills of paper currency. Friday morning Post-Dispatch reporters called on other bankers of the city and inquired what action they intended to take in regard to Secretary Carlisle's appeal for gold, with the following rehult:

Cashier Thompson of the Boatmen's: "I don't know that we will do anything about it, at least we haven't yet. You see it's this way: About this time every year, when preparations are making to handle the crops in the corn and cotton belts, there is a heavy demand for small bills. We are, receiving requests from various sections of the South and West for money of low denomination. If our small bills run low, we may ship some gold to Washington. Mr. Carlisle offers to ship us small bills for gold at the Government rate, which is only 20 cents per $1,000, while the regular rate is $1. So you see by accepting his offer now we would save 80 cents on every thousand dollars in small bills shipped us from Washington."

President Richardson of the Chemical National: "I cannot say that we will do anything unless our stock of small bills runs low."

President Parsons of the State National: "I haven't given the matter any thought, and have nothing to say about it."

Cashier of the Citizens' National: "We have done nothing, and I suspect that whatever of importance is done in that line will done by the clearing-house to obtain small bills."

President Ferguson of the Mechanics' National: "It's just a question of getting small bills at a low rate of shipment, and if we need any we may ship some gold to Washington."

Cashier of the International: "Two or three years ago, when the treasury needed gold to maintain the reserve we shipped $50,000 to Washington, but we haven't given the matter any thought this time."

HENRY ZIEGENHEIN SUED.

Mrs. Kimpel Alleges That He and John Kimpel Misapplied Funds.

Elizabeth Kimpel sued for the appointment of a receiver for the Kimpel Wagon Manufacturing Co. Collector Ziegenhein, Wm. Hahn and John Kimpel are the defendants. Mrs. Kimpel alleges that although she furnished all the capital for the company, Ziegenhein owns the majority of the stock and with his son Adam is about to take possession of all the assets. She alleges that Ziegenhein has illegally appropriated $22,296.22 of the company's funds and Kimpel $8,299.99.

ITS $2,000,000 ALL RIGHT.

Contents of a Bank Safe in the Recent Indianapolis Fire.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 20.—The ponderous six-ton steel door of the Indiana National Bank money vault was slowly swung open this morning, after some hammering and application of wrenches by experts. It revealed amid the scene of ruin about the only reminder of the old state of the bank room in perfect condition. On the inner side of the door was the clear plate of glass, through which was seen the clockwork mechanism. It was sweaty and clouded with dampness, and there were traces of dust about the steel edges of the door. The interior of the vault and contents were found intact. The vault contains about $2,000,000, of which $900,000 is in gold.

DECISION QUESTIONED.

Claimed Trial of Prize Fighters in Texas Was Not Legal.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 20.—It was learned here to-day that Judges Davidson and Henderson of the Court of Appeals refused to sit with Hurt in the prize fight habeas corpus case on the ground that the court cannot hold legal session during vacation, and further that the proper tribunal to hear the case was the County Judge of Dallas County. The regular session of the Court of Appeals begins at Tyler the first Monday of next month, and it is stated here that the Dallas Grand-Jury now in session will indict the principals in the recent fight, and they will have a chance for a hearing before the full bench in regular session.

However this may be Gov. Culberson still stands firm and will prevent the fight under common penal statues, and his determination has given currency to a rumor in sporting circles that the fight will take place in the Indian Territory not far from Colbert.

Sports here have given up hope of seeing the fight in Dallas.

At 10:30 p. m. Thursday John Smith, colored, 39 years old, driver for the Conrad Coal Co., and living at 917 North Twelfth street, died suddenly at the home of Mrs. Joseph Valle, also colored, 1013 Franklin avenue, where he was visiting.

THE MARKETS.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 20.

Anton Kufeke & Co., large importers of Liverpool, write, under date of Sept. 7: "In our opinion the key of the situation at present is [illegible] hands. We were quite ready to go up a [illegible] more ago, but America knocked us down. Our requirements for wheat in the near future are very large. There is absolutely no place to get it from except America. If America chooses to give it to us at our own price, or at less, markets will remain low, but America has it in her own hands."

There can hardly be danger now of damage to corn by frost, except in the extreme northern sections of this country, as the last Minnesota crop report says. "Everything is now out of danger from frost, except garden vegetables and corn in the northern section. Corn in the northern portion of the State has been damaged by frost. Elsewhere it is ripe and much is in the shock."

Notes from Beerbohm: Prospects for Australian wheat satisfactory, but for the Argentine by no means brilliant. Annual consumption of France is 342,000,000 bu and this year's crop of sufficient magnitude that only 16,000,000 bu will have to be imported.

Paris Bulletin des Halles estimates the total wheat crop of the world at 2,336,000,000 bu, against 2,600,000,000 bu in 1894, a decrease of 264,000,000 bu. Requirements of importing countries are placed at 460,000,000 bu and available supply from exporting countries at 448,000,000 bu.

Hog packing in the West since March 1 is 865,000 head smaller than for same time last year.

Inglis, the crop expert, now says that Duluth and Minneapolis will receive 60,000,000 bu wheat during September, October and November.

Liverpool wheat receipts for past three days of 650,000 bu show a large increase, making total for week 1,016,000 bu, of which 342,000 bu from this country. Corn receipts for week 320,000 bu.

WHEAT.

There was a mixture of bull and bear news and conditions in the market this morning. The strongest was the foreign market news cables reporting Liverpool firm, as were also cargoes off coast, and Mark Lane up 3d, but the most improvement in country mkts, those of England being quoted 6d@1s higher and of France ½@1 franc better. Spring wheat receipts were still the most important bear factor, to-day's amounting to 1,135 cars at Duluth and Minneapolis, against 1,077 a week ago and 801 a year ago. As for the winter wheat movement, it remained about as it has been, the largest receipts being at St. Louis, where they exceeded those of a year ago slightly. It was believed gold exports were about over and would exert no adverse influence in the market, so the stock board did not receive the attention it has been attracting of late. But there was nothing particular to influence speculation and the market sailed on dead reckoning for some time. At opening there was pretty fair buying that imparted firmness, but declines elsewhere started freer selling and a let down in price here. The weakness in corn and predictions for 3,000,000 bu increase in the next visible unfortunately affected the market.

The clearances were large and cables strong and generally higher, but domestic markets were weak and so closed.

Spot Grades—Lower. On call No. 2 red was offered regular at 60c, bid 59¼c for United, Terminal and Farmers', 60½c for E. side. No. 3 red sold in United at 58c, in Farmers' at 58@58¼c, and in St. Louis at 58¼c, latter bid Terminal and E. side. No. 4 winter sold in Farmers' at 56c, bid 55c for St. Louis, 55½c for Terminal and 56½c for E. side. Rejected had 38c bid regular, 42c for E. side. No grade offered regular at 26c, no bid. No. 2 hard winter offered at 58¾c, bid 58c for United. No. 3 hard winter sold account whom it may concern, on track this side, at 56½c; for United 55½c bid.

CORN.

The market was easier this forenoon, displaying more weakness than for some time past. This was seen in all domestic markets and also in Liverpool, which reported ¼d decline, whereas London was firm. Warm, fair weather was the rule in most all sections, and, though prospects were for a blizzard in the Northwest, no damage to the great bulk of the corn crop could be feared, as it was beyond danger.

The market showed no recuperative powers and Sept declined heavily.

Spot grades—Lower. On call No. 2 sold regular at 31¾c (⅝c decline), but after Sept had sold at 31c, that price not obtainable for cash and best bid for No. 2 white was 30½c, with this and E. side offered at 32c. No. 3 white offered at 30c, bid 28c.

OATS.

The future market was dull and weak, but not much decline noted.

Spot grades—Lower. No. 2 sold regular at 19c. No. 3 offered at 17c, bid 16½c regular, 16¾c for Farmers', 17c for Terminal. No. 3 white sold regular at 18½c, bid 18¾c for Farmers', 19c for E. side.

RYE.

HAY.

Received, 950 tons; shipped, 200 tons. The condition of the market is virtually unchanged from what has been noted the past week. There appears to be very little choice stock available of either timothy or prairie, as these grades have been quoted firm and scarce of late and no response is reported in the way of increased receipts. Low grades in excessive offering and receivers are at a loss, in some instances, as to where they will unload their receipts, as the warehouses are now already overstocked, with sales slow and then at very reduced prices.

Sales: Track and warehouse—This side—Prairie—1 car (part damaged) at $5, 4 No. 2 at $6, 1 do at $6.50, 2 do at $7, 1 choice at $8.50. Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The stock market opened active and strong with a good demand for nearly all of the leading shares. The more important gains at the outset were Kansas and Texas, pfd, 1⅝; General Electric and New Jersey Central, 1, and Tennessee Coal, 1 per cent. Tobacco opened at 104, an advance over last night's final figures of 1¼ per cent; then reacted to 100½ and at 10:15 was 101⅝. The general tendency continued upward at 10:15.

Stock prices continued to improve rapidly until near 11 o'clock. Meanwhile Chicago Gas recorded a gain of 1⅝ per cent and liberal advances were noted in other shares. The top figures induced realizations, and Sugar dropped 2 per cent, Tobacco 2½, Chicago Gas and Tennessee Coal 1¼, and New Jersey Central 1 per cent. Speculation at 11 a. m. was weak in tone.

The pressure to sell abated shortly after 11 o'clock and on volume business fractional gains were scored. Sugar, Chicago Gas and Consolidated Gas rallied ⅝. Tobacco recovered 1¼ per cent to 101 but did not maintain the improvement, falling subsequently to 98. The stock at noon was 98⅝. Toward midday the persistent selling of Tobacco, together with a raid on Chicago Gas, had a depressing effect on the general list. The last mentioned stock fell 2⅝, Tennessee Coal lost 1 and the general market ⅛ to ⅝ per cent. The market at noon was animated and weak. The sales to noon were 220,300 shares, including 190,000 listed and 30,300 unlisted.

GENUINE BULL FIGHTS.

One of the Features of the Exposition at Atlanta.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—A dispatch from Atlanta, Ga., says:

In spite of all protests from the Humane societies it is said that one of the features of the Mexican Village at the big fair will be genuine Mexican bull fights. The Mexicans and trappings are already on the ground and the ring is being built. Six full-blooded bulls were bought some time ago in Mexico and are now on their way to Atlanta. Just when they will arrive the Mexicans will not say, but admit it will be within a week. It is the intention, they say, to bring off the first fight without informing the Exposition authorities. This will establish a precedent, they think, sufficient to prevent the stopping of subsequent encounters.

Pennsylvania Storm That Killed a Miner and Wrought Havoc.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Sept. 20.—During the heavy storm that prevailed in this section last night, the scale house of the Clearfield Fire Brick Co.'s mine at Bigler, eight miles from here, was struck by lightning, killing Boyd Hummel, a miner, and stunning three others, Charles Gearhardt, Ralph Radifer and George Smeal. Lightning also struck John W. Wrigley's house near here, but the flames were extinguished before much damage had been done.

Pickpockets Find Dedications in Tennessee a Picnic.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 20.—Pickpockets have found the dedications a picnic. Last night while J. W. Blanchard and a party were returning to their stopping place on Missionary Ridge, at midnight, the car was held up by an unknown party and the passengers robbed of all money and watches, amounting in all to several hundred dollars. T. A. Rossington of Rode, Ia., had $25 and two tickets home taken from him. Dr. Charles Snyder of London, O., boarded a park train at Central Station with $140 in his clothes and got off at Battlefield Station without a red.

Maj. W. J. Colburn was touched for $35 and had to borrow a half dollar to get in from the park. Maj. S. T. Sullivan, a prominent railroad man of Columbus, O., mourns $25 and all his railway passes on the big trunk lines of the country. Some of the crooks have been nipped but many still are at work.

FAIR AMAZONS.

Society Ladies Rode Horse Races Astride in New York.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Gymkhana races were the sensations of yesterday, one of the liveliest days of this gala week, at Westchester County Club. There were plenty of society people present, among them Duchess de Dino and Mr. and Mrs. Iselin of Defender fame.

It was 2:50 p. m., when Earnest C. La Montague gave the word to "go" in one of the Gymkhanas. It had not passed his lips before the youthful amazon, Miss Elsie Waterbury, dug her heels into the sides of her horse and was off with a bound. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and Miss Cooley had hardly collected themselves for the start. Miss Waterbury came in with a canter, and it is fair to say that she had been coached by some of the men for the occasion.

The pretty young feminine jockey, who rides astride, was admirably rigged for the Gymkhanas in brown boots and gray coat, somewhat like a princess gown, with short open skirt.

Imposing Funeral of Admiral Delgado Parejo.

MUCH MOURNING IN HAVANA

Bodies of Other Victims of the Barcastegui Thought to Be Devoured by Sharks.

HAVANA, Sept. 20.—The funeral of Admiral Delgado Parejo to-day was the occasion of an imposing demonstration of public sorrow and appreciation of a brave officer. The procession from the chapel of the Marine Hospital, in which the body of the Admiral lay in state yesterday and last night, was a notable one. In it were the prominent military, naval and civil personages in the city, members of the various consulates, representatives of all political parties and many people well known in society here. At the head of the procession rode Gen. Anderius, acting Captain General, in the absence of Marshal Martinez de Campos.

The escort of the remains of Admiral Parejo consisted of a battalion of marines, the survivors of the crew of the wrecked cruiser Barcastegui. One battalion of military volunteers and the firemen and crews of all the transatlantic steamers in port. Military bands were interspersed at intervals in the procession. The corpse was conveyed on a gun carriage. Upon the arrival of the cortege at the cemetery full military honors were rendered.

The body of Parejo was placed in a vault in the Colon Cemetery, in which lies the bodies of the late Generals Salamanca and Arias and Admiral Lono.

While the procession was moving, and during the time the funeral ceremonies were in progress salutes were fired from the forts in the vicinity of Havana.

The streets through which the funeral procession passed on its way to the cemetery were densely packed with citizens, who manifested their sympathy in every possible manner.

Gen. De Campos, who is at present in the Province of Santiago de Cuba on official business, telegraphed an expression of his sorrow at the death of Admiral Parejo and ordered that a wreath of flowers be placed upon the catafalque for him.

No more bodies of those who were lost by the sinking of the Barcastegui have been recovered, and it is supposed that the corpses have been devoured by sharks, which are very numerous at the entrance of the harbor.

Admiral Delgado Parejo was born in Cadiz, July 27, 1828. At the age of 16 years he entered the naval school and six years later, in 1850, was made a subaltern in the Spanish navy. In 1857 he was promoted to a lieutenant and in 1868 was given command of a frigate. In 1872 he was given the full rank of captain, and in 1891 was promoted to be rear-admiral. He was decorated with the medal of the cross of Africa and the grand cross of San Hermenegildo for naval merit of the first-class and for military merit of the second-class in the last campaign in Cuba. He was a commander of the Order of Carlos III. He had executed many important commissions. In private life he was greatly esteemed as a man of exceptional character, cultured and amiable.

INSURGENT INVASION.

Their Policy Is to Divide and Scatter the Spanish Forces.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyrighted, 1895, by the Press Pub. Co.)

HAVANA, Sept. 20.—A large insurgent force is said to have invaded the Province of Matanzas under La Crete, Bermudes, Rego and Arce. The plan of Gen. Campos is to drive them back into the Province of Santiago de Cuba, while the insurgents try to move as far west as possible, so as to keep the Spanish forces scattered and prevent the sugar estates from grinding.

The Madrid Government will send out two more lieutenants-general and divide the island, giving each one half to command under Gen. Campos' orders. They say this is Campos' own suggestion.

Gen. Serafin Sanchez has been appointed Commander-in-Chief of the revolutionary forces in Las Villas, Santa Clara Province.

WITH A ROPE AROUND HER.

True Story About Mrs. McArthur's Bridge Jump.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The true story of Mrs. Clara McArthur's fake of jumping from the Brooklyn Bridge is thus told by Jack Smith, her accomplice, who took her in a boat under the bridge, pushed her in the water and then "rescued" her in fine style.

"Well, sir, we pulled out under the bridge and took in our oars. 'Now,' says I, pulling the carpet off her, 'set up and jump.' She sat up in the boat and looked at the water and never budged. 'Jump,' says I. 'Is the water cold?' says she. 'No,' says I, 'but it will be if you wait long. If you don't shake a leg you will queer the whole game.'

"'You jump in first,' says she. Now, I was perfectly willing for to do that, and I told her so but, Lord, you should ha' seen her crawl. 'Well,' she says, 'if you tie a rope around me I'll jump.' So we tied a rope around her. 'Now, tie it fast to the boat,' says she. We did that too, and did she jump then? Not on your life.

"I was getting tired of the game, for I was afeard the cops would be along again, so I says to her, 'Say,' says I, 'stand up till I fix the rope tight.' She stood up, and before she knew it I pulled her off her feet and dumped her in the water. You'd ought to hear her yell."

So Smith goes on, telling of the mock rescue, the lady's clever imitation of a faint, her resuscitation and the ride in the ambulance.

CONSTERNATION IN THE CARS.

Parting Salute to a Married Couple That Sounded Like Train-Robbers.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

ATCHISON, Kan., Sept. 20.—A Santa Fe westbound passenger train was flagged a few miles out of Atchison last night, and suddenly afterward there was a great firing of guns. The passengers on board thought it was a holdup, and there was consternation among them until it was learned that the train had been flagged at a small station to let a newly married couple on board, and the firing was a parting salute given the bride and groom. Several women on board the train had fainted and the men were hiding their valuables, when the conductor appeared and told them the situation.

ON THE GRAVE'S VERGE.

Remarkable Experience of Gail Hamilton While Close to Death.

HAMILTON, Mass., Sept. 20.—Gail Hamilton has written a remarkable paper on death. It is the outcome of her severe illness last spring and has just been made public. She tells of how she lay prostrated at the Blaine mansion in Washington and shuddered to think of her relatives breaking open the door and finding her dead on the floor. She became unconscious and was so close to dissolution that she saw both of her brothers, Brown and Stanwood Dodge, who have long been dead. They spoke to her with life-like naturalness, but, though she strove hard, she was unable to utter a syllable in answer. Her conclusion is that all in death is beautiful.

CUSTOMS FRAUD.

This Government Loses $150,000 a Year at Sonneberg.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 20.—Dwight J. Partello, United States Consul at Sonneberg, Germany, says that in his consulate alone the United States Government is swindled out of $150,000 customs duties every year, and it is this gigantic steal which brings Mr. Partello to this country and to this city at this time. The abuses responsible for the leak lie in custom-house appraisements at that port, and thieves there have confederates on this side of the water. Speaking of the matter, Mr. Partello says:

"One of the favorite methods of fraud practiced by the Sonneberg exporters and entered into by the New York buyers was to knock off 5 and 25 per cent on the sale. The competition among the sellers is so keen that the buyer may get a rebate of 15 or 20 per cent. The buyer reaps the benefit because he can sell his wares in American markets at a profit increased by that 15 or 20 per cent as the case may be, and the Government is robbed of just that much. For instance, a Sonneberg manufacturer who can sell dolls at 10 marks a dozen and reap a fair profit quotes them at 10 per cent discount, making them 9 marks a dozen. The difference is adjusted between the importer and the buyer, but the Government can only collect duty from the basis of the quoted price.

Under the circumstances the only relief is to have Government appraisers appointed who shall raise the rate of valuation on toys and china to such a figure as shall end the rebate system and force the German exporters to keep within the strict letter of the law.

Mr. Partello recently forwarded to the department at Washington on a report of his researches and the matter was immediately investigated by the Government. Before coming to Chicago Mr. Partello visited the custom-houses in several large Eastern cities. The object of his trip is to establish a method by which the Government may secure the full duties on wares imported from Germany.

Mr. Partello will return this afternoon to lay before the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Treasury the result of his investigations. Those officials have signified their willingness to place in force rules which will result ultimately in throwing a safeguard around the public treasury.
